Service Clubs Hear Ambassador

Korean Ambassador Says Nation Hopeful of Future

Dr. Limb Addresses Service Clubs at Luncheon; U. S. Help Needed

The Republic of Korea looks to the future with hope, the Korean ambassador to the United States, Dr. Ben C. Limb, said in a talk here on Tuesday.

Addressing 215 members of Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs at a combined luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel, Dr. Limb stressed the natural, economic and cultural resources of his country, with the assurance that these factors will, with the aid of the United States, enable Korea to recover from the devastation of war and take its place in the world economy.

Material aid from the U. S., for which Dr. Limb said repeatedly his nation is deeply grateful, will provide the impetus from which Korean recovery will start "snowballing." Money from America "will help us to help ourselves," he said.

Spoke at High School

The Korean ambassador spent most of Tuesday afternoon in Kingston. After his talk to the service club members, he made a brief inspection of work on the New York State Thruway, then went to Kingston High School where he was interviewed by student reporters and editors of the high school newspaper, Dame Rumor, and later addressed a special assembly of students. His noontime talk was taped for rebroadcast later in the day.

The "partnership" which exists between Korea and this country was mentioned throughout Dr. Limb's talk, which was delivered in a friendly and informal spirit and had none of the stiffness that laymen sometimes associate with top level diplomatic representatives.

"Since we are partners, we might just as well know each other," Ambassador Limb said.

Has 30 Million Population

The Korean culture, he pointed out, is entirely different from the Chinese culture, and goes back more than 4,000 years. The country has a population of 30 million, ranking 13th among the nations of the world. In area, it consists of 86,000 square miles, or about equal to the New England states, New York and a part of Pennsylvania. It is a long, narrow peninsula, about 160 miles wide and 600 miles long, reaching out from the Asian mainland into the Pacific Ocean.

Traditionally freedom-loving and long adhering to the Golden Rule and a "live and let live" spirit, the Korean people became willing converts when this country sent Christian missionaries there about 125 years ago, and today Korean people are termed the "most active Christian people in the whole of Asia," Dr. Limb pointed out.

Field Is Fertile

The missionaries found Korea a fertile field, and they rapidly established schools, hospitals, colleges, medical schools, YMCA and YWCA organizations, he said, adding that "the youth of the country rushed to these institutions."

Among those young Koreans who received training in such institutions was Syngman Rhee, later to spend 40 years "pleading the cause of Korean independ-

Woman Found Beaten to Death

Connecticut Resident Slain; No Motive Is Given; Police Chief Says

New Haven, Conn., April 7 (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Spencer, 38, daughter of a retired Yale professor, was found bludgeoned to death today in a bedroom of her parents' home.

A blood stained hammer lay near the body.

Police said they were seeking Mrs. Spencer's husband for questioning and that they had taken a handyman into custody.

No motive for the slaying was established, said Simon Reising, acting police chief.

Mrs. Spencer was the daughter of Alexander Evans, retired Yale botany professor, and Mrs. Evans.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Evans have been living in a New Haven hotel recently, while their daughter occupied their home.

Finds Daughter's Body

Mrs. Evans found her daughter's body when she visited the home this morning.

Det. Lt. William Holohan said the victim's husband was Charles Spencer, a carpenter.

Chief Constable Charles Leonard of North Branford, a New Haven suburb, said Mr. and Mrs. Spencer had lived in the Northford section of that town, but had separated recently.

One of the couple's children, an 18-months-old boy, was found in a bedroom adjoining the one where his mother's body lay. He was unharmed.

ICC Refuses Plea For Check on Acts By Robert Young

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today turned down a petition from the New York Central Railroad Co. for an investigation into the moves made by Robert R. Young and associates, to obtain control of the Central.

Central contended in a petition filed early last month that the ICC should find out whether there is any undisclosed plan for a joint control of Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroads.

Young resigned the board chairmanship of C. & O. in February in order to wage a vigorous proxy fight to take control away from the present management under President William White. The matter comes to a decision at a Central stockholders meeting May 26.

Young retained his board chairmanship of Alleghany Corp., which once controlled C. & O.

In refusing the request for investigation, the ICC said the allegations raised in New York Central's complaints "standing alone and considered in conjunction with the information developed through the commission's preliminary inquiries, do not constitute sufficient grounds for the institution of the investigation requested."

U. S. Probes Action for Indochina

President Says Nation's Loss Would Have Bad Effect; Denies Warning Request

Washington, April 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the free world simply can't afford greater losses to the Communists in Asia.

Loss of Indochina and the rest of southeast Asia would have incalculable consequences, he told a news conference.

Eisenhower said this country is conducting talks with its allies looking toward united action to keep Indochina free but he said no detailed course of action has been set at this time.

Denies Widespread Reports

He denied, in effect, widespread reports that the United States has asked six allies to join in a common warning against further aggression by Communist China in any part of southeast Asia.

It wouldn't be right, Eisenhower said, for this country to propose an answer before there has been a joint study of the problem.

But the question of what to do in Indochina is of the utmost importance to the whole free world, the President said, and is getting more attention than almost any other thing.

Eisenhower said he doubts if there is much chance of reaching a negotiated settlement of the Indochinese question at the Geneva conference to be held April 26.

He declared 450 million Asiatics have been lost to communism and said the free world simply can't afford greater losses, especially when they threaten to knock down other countries like falling dominoes.

Dulles Holds Discussion

Almost simultaneously with the President's news conference, Secretary of State Dulles was discussing Indochina at the Republican Women's Centennial Conference here.

The secretary of state said the United States is seeking to develop a united will among friendly nations interested in the southeast Asian area which would doom Red China's ambitions there to defeat.

Dulles said that if present negotiations produce such a will and make the stand of the free nations sufficiently clear then there would be less need for "united action" to save Indochina from communism.

But he declared grimly that the potential danger to free world interests in the area is very great and there exists the risk of a "great disaster" there.

At the capitol, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas threw Democratic weight behind a stand by Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) that the free nations should "step up and be counted" on measures to resist Communist aggression in Indochina.

70 Degrees Reported

New York, April 7 (AP)—The temperature reached 70 degrees at noon today, highest mark for the year. Although the prediction was continued mild weather throughout the day, there was no indication the all time record of 86.6 established April 7, 1929 would be broken.

Building Code Approved By Council; Claims Filed

Savings Bank Open to Public View April 10

The Kingston Savings Bank, with its enlarged and renovated interior resulting from an addition to its rear and along one side, will be open for public inspection Saturday, April 10, from 1 to 6 p. m., it was announced today by Holt N. Winfield, president.

The addition, constructed by Hoggson Brothers, bank building specialists of New York, provides increased room for its mortgage records, rooms for closings, better facilities for safe deposit box rentors, and an employes' lunchroom. Other parts of the banking building have been improved with painting, the hanging of drapes and laying of carpeting.

The original portion of the building, consisting only of the part topped by the familiar slate dome with copper cupola, was erected in 1900. An addition was put on in 1924, and several years ago extensive interior changes were made when modern counters were installed and other work completed also by Hoggson Brothers.

Chartered in 1874

Chartered April 23, 1874, Kingston Savings Bank began business in quarters in what today is known as the Cordts building at 293 Wall street. At that time the building was owned by the late William H. Romeyn, who published the Kingston Journal, a newspaper that years later was purchased by and consolidated with the Kingston Weekly Freeman.

On May 1, 1885, with increasing business demanding larger quarters, the bank moved to the entire lower floor of the Argus building, adjoining the county court house on the south. The building has since been torn down.

Building Erected 1900

The present building was opened October 1, 1900. It was designed especially for banking purposes by Ingle and Almirall, New York architects and was erected by Sullivan and Badgley of Binghamton. In 1924 the building was extensively remodeled, the sides being extended and most of the original deep front porch being included in the enclosed part of the building.

The bank has had only seven presidents and six treasurers since its formation. The presidents: Henry C. Connelly, 1874 to 1899; Luke Noone, 1899 to 1905; James A. Betts, 1905 to 1915; Myron Teller, 1915 to 1922; George Burgevin, 1922 to 1933; Virgil B. Van Wagonen, 1933 to 1938, and Holt N. Winfield, 1938 to the present. Treasurers: William H. Finch, 1874 to 1876; M. Peter Schoonmaker 1876 to 1879; Charles Burhans, 1879 to 1909; Charles Tappen, 1909 to 1927; Charles H. de la Vergne, 1927 to 1938, and Henry S. Ensign, 1938 to the present.

City's Trees To Be Given Spray Care

Lions Club Will Assist in Paying for Plane Treatment—Two Ask $30,400

Common Council action last night approved the state-drafted building code for the city, authorized a tree-spraying program in conjunction with the Lions Club and left with Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy the consideration of claims against the city totalling more than $44,000.

The building code approved, is the one set up by the State Building Code Commission and recommended by the Kingston planning board and the aldermen. It will be made effective without cost to the city.

William R. Stall, president of the Kingston Lions Club, explained that the club had agreed to add to the $2,500 the city will spend for spraying park trees enough to extend the project throughout the city.

'One Shot Program'

The system to be used, he said, is known as the "one shot program," and it will not only preserve but enhance city foliage. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and other organizations and expert groups were consulted, before the program was decided upon, he said.

Stall said the system was found to be "feasible and economic," and the spray is to be applied by airplane. It is not visible to the naked eye, he said, nor is it harmful in any way.

Of the claims filed, one of $3,500 was for injuries suffered by Stuart Werner, 9, of 23 Chambers street, when he fell, last Feb. 5, into a quarry hole on the south side of Hasbrouck park, and the other two, of $30,400, and $10,000 were filed as the result of an accident on Dec. 11, 1953 involving a city truck.

Attorney N. LeVan Haver filed the two larger claims, the one of $30,400 for Virgil H. Crisman, Jr., and Gertrude R. Crisman of Hurley. A car driven by the latter, the claim said, was in collision at 10:30 a. m., Dec. 11, 1953 near 464 Hasbrouck avenue with a city-owned truck operated by William Freer.

McCarthy Says H-Bomb Stalled in Favor of Reds

Johnson Supports Knowland Stand

Would Count Free Nations to See How They Feel Toward U. S.

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas today threw Democratic weight behind a demand by Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) that the free nations "step up and be counted" on measures to resist Communist aggression in Indochina.

Johnson, the Senate's Democratic leader, praised Knowland's stand in an interview and added:

"We are at the crossroads of foreign policy right now. We're either going to have collective security or we are going to know where we stand."

Knowland, the GOP leader, told the Senate yesterday in a debate sparked by Sen. Kennedy (D.-Mass.) that "the free nations of the world cannot ignore or sidestep" any entry in force by Red China into Indochina.

Time to Step Up

Reference Thrown Into Attack Upon Murrow; Price Says Senator Ignorant

New York, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) says research on America's hydrogen bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months in the face of reports that Russia was "feverishly" pushing a similar project.

"If there were no Communists in our government, why did we delay? . . . McCarthy asked last night in a telecast billed as a reply to criticism of the senator by CBS commentator Edward R. Murrow.

The H-bomb reference was interjected into an attack in which McCarthy termed Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of the jackal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

"Who caused it?" McCarthy demanded of the alleged H-bomb delay. "Was it loyal Americans or was it traitors in our government?"

"Our nation may well die be-

Reade to Remodel B'way Theatre—Assessments $75,000 Less

Kingston theatres came in for Common Council attention twice last night when the aldermen voted on recommendation of Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy to grant them an assessment reduction, and an ordinance amendment was approved to permit renovations along the sidewalk in front of the Broadway Theatre.

Lewis Jones, of the Central Business Men's Association, said that organization favored the renovation plans for the Broadway Theatre, which, he said, would cost in excess of $100,000.

The city needs the class one type of theatre planned, which will be of Colonial style, Jones said. It will have equipment for latest type pictures, and he said the business men and the theatre

President Denies Knowing Of Bomb Lag; Defends Murrow

Washington, April 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he knows nothing about an 18-month delay in hydrogen bomb development as charged by Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.). The President also said he always has regarded commentator Edward R. Murrow, assailed by McCarthy, as a friend.

The President's remarks were at a White House news conference, during which he also said the United States has no need to develop a hydrogen bomb bigger than the one it already has.

Sen. McCarthy said in a TV speech last night that research on America's H-bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months despite information that Russia was pushing a similar project. He asked if this delay would have been possible if there had not been Communists in the American government.

The senator's speech was in reply to a program, critical of his activities, which Murrow had telecast March 9. McCarthy called Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of the jackal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

Eisenhower told questioners he knew nothing about McCarthy's telecast and had never heard of any delay in H-bomb development. Questioned further, he said he was very close to the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission—Lewis L. Strauss—and the chairman never has mentioned such a thing to him.

With emphasis, Eisenhower repeated he has never heard of the matter.

As for Murrow, the President said he had known him for many years and considers him a friend—one of the friends he had made among newspaper and radio people.

Eisenhower went on to say he didn't recall ever having any phil-

Thruway Authority Can Issue Bonds For Four Spurs; Race Bills Signed

Albany, April 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today signed legislation authorizing the State Thruway Authority to issue additional bonds to finance four spurs and an extension to the cross-state expressway. The construction is expected to cost about 300 million dollars.

Dewey signed the bond bills after clearing the way yesterday for the state to exercise iron-clad control over the multi-million-dollar harness racing industry.

The bond bills permit the authority to borrow an unspecified amount of money for the construction. The money would be repaid out of thru-way tolls. The bonds would not be backed by state credit.

The five sections are:

1. The Erie section from Buffalo to the Pennsylvania border.
2. The Niagara section from Buffalo to Niagara Falls.
3. The New England section from New York city through eastern Westchester county to the Connecticut state line.
4. The Berkshire section from a point south of Albany to the proposed Massachusetts Turnpike.
5. An extension from Nyack to the New Jersey border.

The money from the authority's original $500,000,000 bond issue is being devoted entirely to construction of the main New York-Buffalo section of the thruway, the agency said.

Dewey said in a memorandum that the state was "entering the final phase of the greatest highway in the nation." He said the project was being accomplished "without the expenditure of a single dollar of state tax money. The fees paid by users of the thruway will cover the cost of its construction and operation."

The governor said that 400 miles of the thruway from Buffalo to Suffern would be open before the end of this year. "This one section," he said, "will make it the longest operating expressway in the United States."

The governor yesterday signed six bills that clamp rigid state controls on harness tracks, increase by about six-million dollars the state's share of the "bite" on sulky-track betting and bar all public servants and political party officers from holding stock or doing business with flat and harness tracks.

Dewey, in a memorandum, termed the program "drastic" and "unusual." Nevertheless, he added, the restrictions were "desirable because the number of licenses for race tracks and the share of the pari-mutuel revenues available to them are prescribed by law."

"The government," said Dewey, "creates the monopoly and controls its income. These bills are designed to meet a unique situation which does not exist elsewhere."

Four of the new laws give the harness racing commissioner, George P. Monaghan, sweeping powers over the conduct of the sport. The measures were recommended by the Moreland Act Commission appointed to investigate sulky racing.

Under them, the harness commission is empowered to:

1. Require "undesirable persons" to sell their stock in harness racing associations.
2. Check up on the sale of any shares in such organizations.
3. Require all track officers and employes to file fingerprints and photographs with his office.
4. Establish a uniform bookkeeping system and inspect the books.
5. Outlaw the closed shop at tracks, except for food and beverage concessions.

The other two laws were requested by Dewey in a special message to the Legislature last month.

They forbid public officers and employes and political party offi-

Senators Oppose Any Veto Regarding U. S. Bomb Use

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Key senators of both parties made it clear today they are opposed to giving Great Britain or any other ally a veto on American use of the hydrogen bomb.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) pointed up the issue with a declaration in the Senate yesterday that former President Truman was "not correct" in saying that a World War 2 American-British agreement not to use the atomic bomb without the other's consent still was in effect.

Truman, in Kansas City, had "no comment" on Hickenlooper's contradiction of his statement, but said, "the record speaks for itself." Truman and others agreed the 1943 understanding would not cover the H-bomb.

Asserting that Hickenlooper was "absolutely right," Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said in an interview that the agreement was "not satisfactory and was changed." He added that he wants no future agreement of that kind.

British officials have given their opinion that the former agreement no longer holds.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said that as he understands the Eisenhower administration's military policy "there will be no massive retaliation un-

Johnson Supports Knowland Stand

Would Count Free Nations to See How They Feel Toward U. S.

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas today threw Democratic weight behind a demand by Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) that the free nations "step up and be counted" on measures to resist Communist aggression in Indochina.

Johnson, the Senate's Democratic leader, praised Knowland's stand in an interview and added:

"We are at the crossroads of foreign policy right now. We're either going to have collective security or we are going to know where we stand."

Knowland, the GOP leader, told the Senate yesterday in a debate sparked by Sen. Kennedy (D.-Mass.) that "the free nations of the world cannot ignore or sidestep" any entry in force by Red China into Indochina.

Time to Step Up

"If the free nations really be-

Reference Thrown Into Attack Upon Murrow; Price Says Senator Ignorant

New York, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) says research on America's hydrogen bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months in the face of reports that Russia was "feverishly" pushing a similar project.

"If there were no Communists in our government, why did we delay? . . . McCarthy asked last night in a telecast billed as a reply to criticism of the senator by CBS commentator Edward R. Murrow.

The H-bomb reference was interjected into an attack in which McCarthy termed Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of the jackal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

"Who caused it?" McCarthy demanded of the alleged H-bomb delay. "Was it loyal Americans or was it traitors in our government?"

Reade to Remodel B'way Theatre—Assessments $75,000 Less

Kingston theatres came in for Common Council attention twice last night when the aldermen voted on recommendation of Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy to grant them an assessment reduction, and an ordinance amendment was approved to permit renovations along the sidewalk in front of the Broadway Theatre.

Lewis Jones, of the Central Business Men's Association, said that organization favored the renovation plans for the Broadway Theatre, which, he said, would cost in excess of $100,000.

The city needs the class one type of theatre planned, which will be of Colonial style, Jones said. It will have equipment for latest type pictures, and he said the business men and the theatre

City's Trees To Be Given Spray Care

Lions Club Will Assist in Paying for Plane Treatment—Two Ask $30,400

Common Council action last night approved the state-drafted building code for the city, authorized a tree-spraying program in conjunction with the Lions Club and left with Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy the consideration of claims against the city totalling more than $44,000.

The building code approved, is the one set up by the State Building Code Commission and recommended by the Kingston planning board and the aldermen. It will be made effective without cost to the city.

William R. Stall, president of the Kingston Lions Club, explained that the club had agreed to add to the $2,500 the city will spend for spraying park trees enough to extend the project throughout the city.

'One Shot Program'

The system to be used, he said, is known as the "one shot program," and it will not only preserve but enhance city foliage. The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and other organizations and expert groups were consulted, before the program was decided upon, he said.

Stall said the system was found to be "feasible and economic," and the spray is to be applied by airplane. It is not visible to the naked eye, he said, nor is it harmful in any way.

Of the claims filed, one of $3,500 was for injuries suffered by Stuart Werner, 9, of 23 Chambers street, when he fell, last Feb. 5, into a quarry hole on the south side of Hasbrouck park, and the other two, of $30,400, and $10,000 were filed as the result of an accident on Dec. 11, 1953 involving a city truck.

Attorney N. LeVan Haver filed the two larger claims, the one of $30,400 for Virgil H. Crisman, Jr., and Gertrude R. Crisman of Hurley. A car driven by the latter, the claim said, was in collision at 10:30 a. m., Dec. 11, 1953 near 464 Hasbrouck avenue with a city-owned truck operated by William Freer.

Driven From Yard

The truck was being driven out of a yard maintained by the BPW. The claimant, Gertrude

Thruway Authority Can Issue Bonds For Four Spurs; Race Bills Signed

Albany, April 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today signed legislation authorizing the State Thruway Authority to issue additional bonds to finance four spurs and an extension to the cross-state expressway. The construction is expected to cost about 300 million dollars.

Dewey signed the bond bills after clearing the way yesterday for the state to exercise iron-clad control over the multi-million-dollar harness racing industry.

The bond bills permit the authority to borrow an unspecified amount of money for the construction. The money would be repaid out of thru-way tolls. The bonds would not be backed by state credit.

The five sections are:

1. The Erie section from Buffalo to the Pennsylvania border.
2. The Niagara section from Buffalo to Niagara Falls.
3. The New England section from New York city through eastern Westchester county to the Connecticut state line.
4. The Berkshire section from a point south of Albany to the proposed Massachusetts Turnpike.
5. An extension from Nyack to the New Jersey border.

The money from the authority's original $500,000,000 bond issue is being devoted entirely to construction of the main New York-Buffalo section of the thruway, the agency said.

Dewey said in a memorandum that the state was "entering the final phase of the greatest highway in the nation." He said the project was being accomplished "without the expenditure of a single dollar of state tax money. The fees paid by users of the thruway will cover the cost of its construction and operation."

The governor said that 400 miles of the thruway from Buffalo to Suffern would be open before the end of this year. "This one section," he said, "will make it the longest operating expressway in the United States."

The governor yesterday signed six bills that clamp rigid state controls on harness tracks, increase by about six-million dollars the state's share of the "bite" on sulky-track betting and bar all public servants and political party officers from holding stock or doing business with flat and harness tracks.

Dewey, in a memorandum, termed the program "drastic" and "unusual." Nevertheless, he added, the restrictions were "desirable because the number of licenses for race tracks and the share of the pari-mutuel revenues available to them are prescribed by law."

"The government," said Dewey, "creates the monopoly and controls its income. These bills are designed to meet a unique situation which does not exist elsewhere."

Four of the new laws give the harness racing commissioner, George P. Monaghan, sweeping powers over the conduct of the sport. The measures were recommended by the Moreland Act Commission appointed to investigate sulky racing.

Under them, the harness commission is empowered to:

1. Require "undesirable persons" to sell their stock in harness racing associations.
2. Check up on the sale of any shares in such organizations.
3. Require all track officers and employes to file fingerprints and photographs with his office.
4. Establish a uniform bookkeeping system and inspect the books.
5. Outlaw the closed shop at tracks, except for food and beverage concessions.

The other two laws were requested by Dewey in a special message to the Legislature last month.

President Denies Knowing Of Bomb Lag; Defends Murrow

Washington, April 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he knows nothing about an 18-month delay in hydrogen bomb development as charged by Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.). The President also said he always has regarded commentator Edward R. Murrow, assailed by McCarthy, as a friend.

The President's remarks were at a White House news conference, during which he also said the United States has no need to develop a hydrogen bomb bigger than the one it already has.

Sen. McCarthy said in a TV speech last night that research on America's H-bomb was deliberately stalled for 18 months despite information that Russia was pushing a similar project. He asked if this delay would have been possible if there had not been Communists in the American government.

The senator's speech was in reply to a program, critical of his activities, which Murrow had telecast March 9. McCarthy called Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of the jackal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

Eisenhower told questioners he knew nothing about McCarthy's telecast and had never heard of any delay in H-bomb development. Questioned further, he said he was very close to the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission—Lewis L. Strauss—and the chairman never has mentioned such a thing to him.

With emphasis, Eisenhower repeated he has never heard of the matter.

As for Murrow, the President said he had known him for many years and considers him a friend—one of the friends he had made among newspaper and radio people.

Eisenhower went on to say he didn't recall ever having any phil-

Senators Oppose Any Veto Regarding U. S. Bomb Use

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Key senators of both parties made it clear today they are opposed to giving Great Britain or any other ally a veto on American use of the hydrogen bomb.

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) pointed up the issue with a declaration in the Senate yesterday that former President Truman was "not correct" in saying that a World War 2 American-British agreement not to use the atomic bomb without the other's consent still was in effect.

Truman, in Kansas City, had "no comment" on Hickenlooper's contradiction of his statement, but said, "the record speaks for itself." Truman and others agreed the 1943 understanding would not cover the H-bomb.

Asserting that Hickenlooper was "absolutely right," Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said in an interview that the agreement was "not satisfactory and was changed." He added that he wants no future agreement of that kind.

British officials have given their opinion that the former agreement no longer holds.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said that as he understands the Eisenhower administration's military policy "there will be no massive retaliation un-

Churches Seek Store Closings on Good Friday, 12-3

A campaign for "wider commemoration of the Passion and death of Christ on Good Friday afternoon" will be conducted again this year, it was announced today.

This is the third successive year in which the drive has been held.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church, and the Rev. John D. Simmons of St. Joseph's Church, explained in a joint statement that the "aim, along with the cooperation of all Christians of our community, is to have as many as possible of the merchants and shopkeepers close their place of blsiness from noon until 3 o'clock.

Has Been Heartening

"The prompt and generous response of our merchants and shopkeepers and the cooperation of the people has been heartening indeed. Posters have been displayed in the store windows reading: 'This store will be closed from 12 noon until 3 p. m. Good Friday in observance of the death of Christ.'

"This is a gentle reminder to customers to try to make their purchases immediately before or after this interval of closing. It has been gratifying indeed, to realize that most of the places of business have gone along with this idea for the past three years and participated in the observance.

Results Were 'Obvious'

"The effects of the campaign were impressively obvious, for with the stoppage of business for those three hours, men and women began to think of Christ—His suffering and death and their redemption. Protestant and Catholic churches alike were sought for places of devotion on the part of those who were freed from work and those who willingly postponed their shopping until after the three sacred hours had elapsed.

"This fine response of the Christian spirit on the part of both business and the people of our community during the past three years to show the proper reverence and respect for the most solemn and sacred day on the Christian calendar, certainly calls for a like effort on Good Friday of this year."

Krum to Attend Insurance Parley On Auto Accidents

William A. Krum, 56 Hoffman street, a policyholder in Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, has been chosen a local delegate to a policyholders' convention in Columbus, O., April 8, 9 and 10, to discuss new company policies, progressive and cooperative insurance ideas.

The new policies are relative to lowering of rates on automobile insurance, if the solution can be found to mounting highway accidents and fatalities, according to Lawrence W. Glennon, local representative of the insurance company.

Krum, a former Kingston police detective, and Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, was chosen at a recent Albany regional meeting to be the area delegate to Columbus, because of his interest in the automobile insurance matter. He will be among 250 delegates at the midwest meeting from all sections of the nation.

Will Give Report

Prior to the Albany convention, Krum attended a local forum of Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance, and his interest in the company problems made him the outstanding choice to be the local representative at the upstate session.

Agent Glennon, formerly an interviewer with the New York State Division of Employment, in the Kingston office, is the local representative of the insurance company. He said that Krum will bring back a detailed report on the sessions of the convention at the end of the three-day period.

Changed Status

Washington, D. C., was incorporated as a city in 1802 and its municipal affairs were run by mayors and boards of aldermen regularly elected by the citizenry. Congress, in 1871, decided to turn the District of Columbia into a territory and govern it as though it were Alaska or an Indian reservation.

Credak Franchise In Four Counties

Christopher D. Morris of Kingston and Jack Citroen of Woodstock have been granted the Credak, Inc., franchise for the counties of Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange, they announced today.

Operating under the name of Credak of DUSO Counties, Morris and Citroen maintain an office at 261 Fair street.

Credak is a nationwide credit system, somewhat similar in operation to the department store "charge-a-plate," but applying one credit card to large groups of small member retailers.

In one month of preliminary operation, the Morris-Citroen firm has signed more than 80 merchants in the four-county area. Applications from individuals for the credit cards—which permits charging purchases at any of the member stores—are now being received and may be obtained at any member store.

The credit cards are issued at no charge to the customer. Credak, Inc., receives its income from an annual fee charged its member merchants plus a fixed percentage of sales made on the Credak account. Member merchants are issued an identifying decal or streamer.

The service offers the customer a charge account at member stores with one billing a month for all purchases. It offers member merchants the service of handling the charge account and assuming the risk, according to Morris.

Churches Seek Store Closings on Good Friday, 12-3

A campaign for "wider commemoration of the Passion and death of Christ on Good Friday afternoon" will be conducted again this year, it was announced today.

This is the third successive year in which the drive has been held.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church, and the Rev. John D. Simmons of St. Joseph's Church, explained in a joint statement that the "aim, along with the cooperation of all Christians of our community, is to have as many as possible of the merchants and shopkeepers close their place of blsiness from noon until 3 o'clock.

Has Been Heartening

"The prompt and generous response of our merchants and shopkeepers and the cooperation of the people has been heartening indeed. Posters have been displayed in the store windows reading: 'This store will be closed from 12 noon until 3 p. m. Good Friday in observance of the death of Christ.'

"This is a gentle reminder to customers to try to make their purchases immediately before or after this interval of closing. It has been gratifying indeed, to realize that most of the places of business have gone along with this idea for the past three years and participated in the observance.

Results Were 'Obvious'

"The effects of the campaign were impressively obvious, for with the stoppage of business for those three hours, men and women began to think of Christ—His suffering and death and their redemption. Protestant and Catholic churches alike were sought for places of devotion on the part of those who were freed from work and those who willingly postponed their shopping until after the three sacred hours had elapsed.

"This fine response of the Christian spirit on the part of both business and the people of our community during the past three years to show the proper reverence and respect for the most solemn and sacred day on the Christian calendar, certainly calls for a like effort on Good Friday of this year."

Krum to Attend Insurance Parley On Auto Accidents

William A. Krum, 56 Hoffman street, a policyholder in Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, has been chosen a local delegate to a policyholders' convention in Columbus, O., April 8, 9 and 10, to discuss new company policies, progressive and cooperative insurance ideas.

The new policies are relative to lowering of rates on automobile insurance, if the solution can be found to mounting highway accidents and fatalities, according to Lawrence W. Glennon, local representative of the insurance company.

Krum, a former Kingston police detective, and Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, was chosen at a recent Albany regional meeting to be the area delegate to Columbus, because of his interest in the automobile insurance matter. He will be among 250 delegates at the midwest meeting from all sections of the nation.

Will Give Report

Prior to the Albany convention, Krum attended a local forum of Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance, and his interest in the company problems made him the outstanding choice to be the local representative at the upstate session.

Agent Glennon, formerly an interviewer with the New York State Division of Employment, in the Kingston office, is the local representative of the insurance company. He said that Krum will bring back a detailed report on the sessions of the convention at the end of the three-day period.

Changed Status

Washington, D. C., was incorporated as a city in 1802 and its municipal affairs were run by mayors and boards of aldermen regularly elected by the citizenry. Congress, in 1871, decided to turn the District of Columbia into a territory and govern it as though it were Alaska or an Indian reservation.

Credak Franchise In Four Counties

Christopher D. Morris of Kingston and Jack Citroen of Woodstock have been granted the Credak, Inc., franchise for the counties of Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange, they announced today.

Operating under the name of Credak of DUSO Counties, Morris and Citroen maintain an office at 261 Fair street.

Credak is a nationwide credit system, somewhat similar in operation to the department store "charge-a-plate," but applying one credit card to large groups of small member retailers.

In one month of preliminary operation, the Morris-Citroen firm has signed more than 80 merchants in the four-county area. Applications from individuals for the credit cards—which permits charging purchases at any of the member stores—are now being received and may be obtained at any member store.

The credit cards are issued at no charge to the customer. Credak, Inc., receives its income from an annual fee charged its member merchants plus a fixed percentage of sales made on the Credak account. Member merchants are issued an identifying decal or streamer.

The service offers the customer a charge account at member stores with one billing a month for all purchases. It offers member merchants the service of handling the charge account and assuming the risk, according to Morris.

NATO MANEUVER

Russia has offered to become a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on the condition that the plan for a European Army, which would include a rearmed West Germany, be scrapped. This is an application of the maxim, "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

The United States has wisely rejected the Russian offer. The Red proposal was nothing more or less than an effort to weaken NATO and break up the plan for a European Army which seems to be the most practical way of preventing future Russian aggression.

Since the idea of NATO was conceived it has been a thorn in the side of the Russians. It has been a symbol of the failure of the avowed Communist strategy "divide and conquer." Every hostile move the Kremlin has made since the end of World War II has strengthened the unity of the free world and that unity culminated in NATO.

There has been some hesitancy among our European allies about full participation in the European Army. Some people in our own country have questioned the effectiveness of the idea that such an Army could prevent aggression. The Russian eagerness to have the European Army scrapped and to enter NATO in order to sabotage it is evidence of how much the Communists dread the idea of a strong alliance of free countries.

Often one's friends have the unfortunate characteristic of merely forming a group telling a person he is not alone in the way he feels about himself.

THE ALTERNATIVES

It may be that the knowledge of the destructive potential of the hydrogen bomb will serve as a deterrent to war. It is apparent that no country can hope to win a war in which such weapons are used. One side might be damaged more severely than the other, but victory would only be a matter of degree of destruction.

Man cannot hide his head in the sand in the hope that when he looks out and up again he will discover that the atomic and hydrogen bomb were just bad dreams. The destructive force first unleashed at Hiroshima is with us to stay.

The same power that is utilized in bombs can be converted to useful, constructive ends. It can create a world of plenty for all if it is used wisely. The areas of the globe where there are no good sources of power can be made productive, the deserts can be made to bloom.

Since the dawn of recorded history there have been wars and always men of good will have sought ways of avoiding them. It is no longer a question, however, of how we can prevent wars but whether any trace of our civilization will survive if we don't. The alternatives are plain and inescapable: we must learn to live with the terrible force of the atom or we must expect to perish by it.

In this election year it is encouraging to see that our politicians still take their fearless stand against sin and in favor of mother, home and the flag.

HUMANITY'S SUICIDE

Ever since the recent H-bomb explosions in the Pacific, speculation has been great as to the magnitude of these blasts. Chairman Lewis L. Strauss has done a good deal to eliminate the guesswork.

We now know we are in possession of a bomb so powerful that just one will wipe out any city on earth, even the largest like London and New York.

All around the fringes of New York today are roadway signs saying that in event of enemy attack, "This road will be closed to regular civilian traffic." The signs assume that people would be alive to move in and out of a damaged area, and that military authorities would manage this traffic.

As we see from Strauss' comment, these signs may well be out of date. For a single hydrogen bomb could obliterate the entire New York metropolitan area. There might not be any traffic in or out.

This is just a way of pointing up the ghastliness of the prospect of nuclear warfare. Every human on earth must hope it never comes. If men on both sides of the Iron Curtain are not reading the news of these explosions with the grimmest concern, they are near to being mad. It is inconceivable that they would contemplate for any instant a kind of warfare that could well be humanity's suicide.

THE HISS PENSION

A number of bills have been introduced in the House of Representatives to prevent Alger Hiss from receiving a pension when he comes out of prison. Should no legislation be passed, Hiss will get his pension.

H.R. 1239, introduced by W. Sterling Cole of New York, is designed to deny benefits, under Civil Service or other Federal retirement systems, to persons convicted of felonies involving improper use of their authority, power, influence or privileges as officers or employes of the United States. This measure is now before the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

Similar bills, now before the same Committee, are H.R. 3301, introduced by Representative Frank M. Karsten of Missouri, H.R. 6940, introduced by Mrs. Katharine St. George of New York, H.R. 7381, introduced by Thomas A. Jenkins of Ohio, H.R. 7476, introduced by T. Millet Hand of New Jersey, and H.R. 8091, introduced by Richard H. Poff of Virginia.

Representative Kit Clardy of Michigan presented bill H.R. 5299, which deals specifically with Alger Hill. It reads:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That no part of the civil-service retirement and disability fund shall be used to pay an annuity to Alger Hiss. The Civil Service Commission, within 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, shall return to the said Alger Hiss the total amount to his credit in such fund."

Alger Hiss does not lose his pension rights because he went to prison. This pension is a contractual arrangement between an employer and an employe, often both sides contributing thereto, by which at a stated period the beneficiary will receive a stated amount. Hiss paid his share into the pension fund and that money is his. The share that he paid in can be returned to him under the terms of some of the bills, but it would be interesting to cogitate on how the courts would hold in a matter that involves a breach of contract or an alteration of the terms of a contract by an ex post facto law.

The question would arise as to whether the Government, as an employer, may violate a contract, by act of legislation which a private employer could not violate under any circumstances. As a matter of fact, the private employer is usually forced to set pension funds apart lest he not have them when required to meet his obligations. Surely, Hiss could get his own money back and it is probable that he would sue for the full amount and take his chances in the court.

In some of the legislation, a distinction is made between "retired pay" and "pension." No matter how one words it, if the prospective recipient of the benefit has entered into a contract and has paid into the fund, which is consideration, it raises a tricky question for the lawyers.

The subject is brought up only to show that it is not always so easy to do as one pleases in a political system in which the law and not the whims of man prevail. The simplest rule of life is "off with his head." But it may be your head or mine and we want protectives. Once the rights of man are recognized and protectives against whimsical tyranny are established, the rules that apply to the good apply equally to the wicked, and if the rules are relaxed so that the wicked may be punished, the good are placed in jeopardy. When it is said that this is a government of law, not of men, it means that the law applies to all, to the wicked as well as the good, and, of course, the wicked usually have the advantage.

Under such circumstances, it becomes increasingly difficult to work reprisals on such a man as Alger Hiss by withholding his pension. If he goes into court over such a question and should the court hold that despite his crime of periury, he is entitled to his pension, he will get the money and he will use it as he chooses. Many lawyers say that the courts will have no alternative but to hold that his crime of perjury did not impair his contract as to a pension.

That Body of Yours

KEEPING BLOOD PRESSURE LOW

One of the dangerous but necessary operations done as an emergency—for example, in paralytic stroke or severe brain injury—is creating an opening in the skull—craniotomy.

Naturally, it is important that the blood pressure be kept low during this operation as high pressure might bring on another stroke. A method has, therefore, been devised to keep the blood pressure within a safe limit at this time.

In the British Lancet, Drs. S. Anderson and W. McKissock dicuss the control of blood pressure with Arfonad in surgery of the nerves and brain.

In fifty-two patients on whom major craniotomies were performed since March, 1953, at St. George's Hospital, London, low blood pressure was induced by Arfonad. Four patients died; three of these were poor subjects for major surgery. There was no reason to believe that inducing low blood pressure during operation influenced these fatalities."

All patients to whom Arfonad was administered had a fall in blood pressure; only in one instance was there a failure to lower blood pressure to the level requested by the surgeon. After the blood pressure had fallen, the low blood pressure state was easily maintained; only in two cases was it necessary to supplement Arfonad with procaine amide hydrochloride. Although Arfonad is short acting, the blood pressure was seldom restored as soon as the infusion stopped; there was usually a lapse of from 1 to 20 minutes before the pressure rose. These physicians explain that this disadvantage (failure of the blood pressure to rise immediately after Arfonad is discontinued) was overcome by flattening the table, with two exceptions. In two cases methamphetamine (methedrine) was injected to hasten the return to normal blood pressure.

One of the latest drugs to lower blood pressure is methonium compounds but these physicians found Arfonad superior to the methonium compounds for keeping blood pressure low, especially in surgery of brain and nerves in which low blood pressure is necessary. Because it is short acting, it gives the anesthetist greater control of blood pressure, reduces hemorrhage and tension.

However, Drs. Anderson and McKissock warn that Arfonad is not a complete answer to the dangers of high blood pressure. It should be used only in selected cases.

It is of interest to see that one of the problems of high blood pressure that is its danger during operations such as opening up the skull to expose the brain, is on its way to being solved.

Certainly Not Picnic Weather

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (AP) — The great new power of the H-bomb, plus the fact that some 289 human beings were distantly exposed to it, has whetted the interest of many people in knowing more about what constitutes a dangerous dose of radiation.

Bomb explosions or not, there is naturally, at all times, a certain amount of "background radiation" in the atmosphere. There have been a number of reports that the Geiger count on background radiation in the U. S. have gone up since the H-bomb tests in March. There have been a number of inquiries at the Atomic Energy Commission on whether there is any new or greater danger to the American people from this source than there was from the A-bomb tests.

AEC has a stock answer for all such queries. It doesn't tell much in detail. It admits that there has been a small increase in natural background radiation in the past month. This radioactivity is said to be still far below levels which are dangerous to animal and plant life. It will decrease rapidly until the radiation returns to its normal, ever-present levels.

This normal background radiation comes from radioactive materials in the earth's surface and from the cosmic rays from outer space. A layer of soil one foot deep and a mile square will contain on the average, a gram of radium, three tons of uranium and six tons of thorium. About six minute cosmic ray particles per minute cross a horizontal surface one inch square.

This background radiation is greater in mountainous regions than at sea level. It may be increased as much as ten times by rain or snowfall which seems to absorb radioactive particles in the air.

Radiation can be measured because it causes damage to the parts of the body through which it passes or in which it is absorbed. This process is called ionization. What it means is that the radiation causes the molecules in the body tissue, which carry no electrical charge, to break down into charged parts called ions.

The unit for measuring the ionizing effect of radiation is called the roentgen. It was named after the discoverer of the X-ray. The definition of a roentgen is so technical that only a scientist can understand it. The simplest thing for the average person is to take the roentgen for granted, like the horsepower or the kilowatt.

In more understandable terms, a routine intestinal X-ray examination exposes anyone to about one roentgen, or 1 r. of radiation. A small skin cancer could be exposed to 4000 r. of X-rays with no effect other than ionization of the cancer cells. But a single exposure of only 400 r. to all parts of the body at once would probably cause death to half the persons who got it.

The maximum safe exposure has been determined to be three tenths of one roentgen a week, indefinitely.

The natural background radiation in the U. S. has been measured as from eight one hundredths to eight tenths of one roentgen (0.08 r. to 0.8 r.) a year. This is obviously way under the limits of safe exposure given in the paragraph above.

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission maintains 121 observation stations all over the U. S. to keep a check on radiation count. Any time the radiation fall-out from atomic or hydrogen bomb explosion dust gets at all close to danger levels, they'll let you know.

So They Say...

I would say: Eggheads of the world units, you have nothing to lose but your yolks.

He (Stevens) is a helluva nice guy who is too honest and too naive to cope with the Pentagon politicians.

—Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

They ("flying discs") moved ahead of the plane, and then fell in behind it. Then they shot far into the sky and came back.

President's TV Appearance Called Best of Any by Public Man

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 7—President Eisenhower made on Monday night the best television presentation any public man has made since the new medium has come to the American people. It was an outstanding performance because it was natural, informal and simple. Whether this was the result of careful coaching, or special training by the experts, the result offers a challenge to public speakers hereafter to match his style of delivery and simplicity.

Unlike some of the President's previous appearances when, with his eyes on a prompting device invisible to his audience, he has read lines that seemed to be poorly phrased from the standpoint of the hearers, this didn't seem to be a speech at all—it was just a talk.

In his informal conversations with callers the President has always seemed at ease, never lacking for a simple word or phrase to make a point. Now he has achieved the same sort of informality before the television cameras and that is, an important feat.

Regardless of the content of the talk—and opinions will differ on the merits of some sections of it—the net impression left on a fair-minded or unpartisan listener was one of sincerity and earnestness. His words carried conviction. The same kind of delivery in a political campaign would be tremendous on the vote-getting side. But it is precisely because Mr. Eisenhower wasn't asking for votes and wasn't talking politics, that he attained the same kind of approval the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt won when he first delivered his non-partisan fireside chats.

There may be some question whether every public man can match the effect which Mr. Eisenhower's talk produced even if the informality of style in delivery were duplicated. There is something about the Eisenhower personality which is infectious. Perhaps it is the prestige of the positions he has held in critical times in the past, and perhaps it is because every one knows he isn't a self-seeking politician, but it is the Eisenhower personality after all which is the main reason for the effectiveness of the television style he now has mastered.

Curiously enough, there wasn't a lot of new information in what the President said, and some of the Democrats who have criticized the speech for that reason were perhaps disappointed because they expected some sort of profound utterance on the international situation.

Mr. Eisenhower, nevertheless said many implicitly important things, especially as he analyzed Soviet weaknesses on the economic side and repeated the idea of massive retaliation in the event that "in a fit of madness or through miscalculation" the persons in the Kremlin should start a big war.

Everything that the President said showed that he didn't believe a world war was in the offing. Certainly, he made it clear no war would ever be started on American initiative, so the question as to whether the H-bomb will actually destroy any human lives rests with a small group of men in Moscow. By pointing up this fact the President focused attention on the real source of potential trouble.

When Mr. Eisenhower dealt with other subjects, especially on the domestic side, he was somewhat vague. Generally speaking, he was reassuring about the business outlook and rightly pointed to the large number of employed in contrast with the small number who are unemployed. He did not attempt to give statistics, but it was quite apparent that the President exudes confidence about the readjustment in business now in progress.

One of the handicaps of the type of speech which the President tried is that in covering so many big subjects there isn't time enough to go into detail on any of them. His treatment of the issue of Communist penetration in government, for example, was all too brief, as was his discussion of the role of Congressional investigating committee. He properly stressed the fine job the F.B.I. has been doing. He omitted, however, mentioning that the F.B.I. did an equally good job under the preceding Administration. But this wasn't of as much avail because F.B.I. reports were ignored or minimized by the White House, especially in the Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White cases. Nor did Mr. Eisenhower explain that sometimes when the statute of limitations has run, no prosecutions can be instituted even if F.B.I. evidence is gathered. Then the only way to deal with those who have been engaged in the Communist cause is to expose them through Congressional hearings. If it were not for a House committee, Alger Hiss would not be in jail today, even though the F.B.I. had all the information in its files long before he was prosecuted for swearing falsely.

Mr. Eisenhower's talk on the whole has stimulated a lot of discussion in Congress—not so much because of what he said but how he said it. A new force in political campaigning has been perfected by Dwight Eisenhower.

Animal Heroes

The heroes of World War 1 are not all found on the human roster. The part played by horses, mules, camels, oxen and dogs is well known. Pigeons flew messages. Canaries and white mice, because of their sensitivity to impure air, were carried in submarines and cats, geese and other creatures served as mascots in the various regiments.

Huge Galaxy

The galaxy is a huge system of some 100 billion stars, of which our sun is one. Its diameter is about 58,000 light years, with a light year being the distance light travels in a year, or nearly 6,000 billion miles.

Big Ones, Small Ones

Bolts used in American factories vary from one-thirty-second-inch in diameter to one 29 inches across, 35 feet long and 38 tons in weight, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 6—Major-General Clayton L. Bissell, now retired, the wartime chief of the American army intelligence, had the responsibility for the preservation of the report of an American officer, on the horrible massacre of about 14,600 Polish army officers and "intellectual leaders", by the Russians, probably in May, 1940. The report is gone. Someone, either in the Pentagon, where Bissell had his office, or in the State Department, disposed of it. It accused the Russians of wiping out the flower of Polish manhood. Whatever happened, it vanished and has never been found. A careful inquiry was made by a select committee of the House of Representatives in the summer and fall of 1952. Bissell, the man with direct, absolute responsibility, said only one copy was made. The officer reporting was Lt. Col. John H. Van Vliet, Jr. captured by the Germans in Africa, he was liberated by the Russians as they advanced westward, made his way into the American lines and reached Washington on May 22, 1945.

Bissell testified, "he told me the story of the visit to Katyn Forest in such a calm, direct and conservative manner that there was no doubt in my mind that he was telling the truth, about those events exactly as he remembered what had occurred two years earlier."

Van Vliet's report was prepared under elaborate conditions as to secrecy. Thereafter all trace of it was lost.

And yet, although the destruction of that proof of Russian perfidy had a fateful effect on Western civilization, the whole affair has been treated as a trifle by those same giants of the American press which have a monumental issue of the charge that David Schine, Joe McCarthy's investigator or traitorous activity, was allowed to wear non-regulation shoes for a few days after his induction. The reason why he wore non-regulation shoes was that the quartermaster had no regulation issue big enough.

Bissell said he directed that Van Vliet's report be classified "Top secret." An attempt was made to pass the buck to the State Department, which at the time was infested with the Alger Hiss-Acheson cult. But Bissell never proved that the document left his official custody.

The select committee, with Ray J. Madden, of Indiana, as chairman, unanimously reported "beyond any question of reasonable doubt that the Soviet people's commissariat of internal affairs committed the mass murders of the Polish officers and intellectual leaders in the Katyn Forest near Smolensk, Russia. Approximately 15,000 Polish prisoners were interned in three Soviet camps, Kozielsk, Starobielsk and Ostashkov, in the winter of 1939-40." Only 400 of them ever were heard of again.

The committee report continued: "Evidence repeatedly points to the certainty that only those 4,143 prisoners interned at Kozielsk were actually exhumed from the seven mass graves. We are equally certain that the rest of the 15,000 officers were executed. Testimony was presented by several witnesses that the Ostashkov prisoners were placed on barges and drowned in the White Sea. No one could entertain any doubt of Russian guilt for the Katyn massacre."

The committee was carrying out a request from Congress to "determine why certain reports and files concerning the Katyn massacre disappeared or were suppressed by departments of our government. * * * American authorities knew of the growing tension between the Soviets, and the poles during 1942-43. They knew of the hopeless search for the Polish officers. But all the time all these factors were brushed aside on the theory that pressing the search would irritate Soviet Russia and thus hinder the prosecution of the war."

The committee further said: "An independent investigation by the army's inspector general in 1950 concluded that the report had been 'compromised' and that there is nothing to indicate that it ever left army intelligence. Bissell steadfastly maintained that he forwarded the Document to the Department of State on May 25, 1945. It becomes apparent that the President and the State Department ignored numerous documents from Ambassador Standley (in Moscow) and Ambassador Winant (in London) who reported information which strongly pointed to Soviet perfidy. It becomes obvious that Mr. Roosevelt's dealings with the Soviets throughout the war were based on a strong desire for mutual cooperation with Russia. This desire completely overshadowed the dictates of justice to our loyal but weaker ally, Poland."

Eleanor Roosevelt, one of the most caustic opponents of all congressional efforts to root traitors out of the administration of which she was an influential member, has never devoted a single syllable of her voluminous writings to reprobation of this classical horror.

Bissell flew in the American Army on the British front for 5½ months in World War 1 and left the army as a captain in 1920. He had had absolutely no experience in intelligence work until 1943 "except from the practical user's end." This was like saying he knew nothing about cooking except that he had had some experience in eating.

The callous, flippant attitude of the New Deal toward the massacre was well expressed by a leading political propagandist of the Roosevelt cult in an article written from Russia in 1944.

Quentin Reynolds wrote that when the Polish government in exile in London denounced the atrocity, "we" of the American set in Russia, thought of "an old Russian saying: 'What's the use of being a Pole if you can't be stupid?'"

He insisted that the revelation of the massacre was a "trap" set by Doktor Goebbels. His political conclusion was this:

"Now she (Poland) is in an unhappy condition. The world bleeds for the cruelties practiced upon her people. But the fact remains that diplomatically Poland is and has been out of step with her allies and especially her biggest ally—Russia. Leaving the equities of the case severely alone, the conclusion is inescapable that Poland isn't big enough or strong enough to get out of step. When you get out of step you march alone. No one is big enough to march alone in this year of our Lord, 1943."

NATO MANEUVER

Russia has offered to become a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on the condition that the plan for a European Army, which would include a rearmed West Germany, be scrapped. This is an application of the maxim, "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

The United States has wisely rejected the Russian offer. The Red proposal was nothing more or less than an effort to weaken NATO and break up the plan for a European Army which seems to be the most practical way of preventing future Russian aggression.

Since the idea of NATO was conceived it has been a thorn in the side of the Russians. It has been a symbol of the failure of the avowed Communist strategy "divide and conquer." Every hostile move the Kremlin has made since the end of World War II has strengthened the unity of the free world and that unity culminated in NATO.

There has been some hesitancy among our European allies about full participation in the European Army. Some people in our own country have questioned the effectiveness of the idea that such an Army could prevent aggression. The Russian eagerness to have the European Army scrapped and to enter NATO in order to sabotage it is evidence of how much the Communists dread the idea of a strong alliance of free countries.

Often one's friends have the unfortunate characteristic of merely forming a group telling a person he is not alone in the way he feels about himself.

THE ALTERNATIVES

It may be that the knowledge of the destructive potential of the hydrogen bomb will serve as a deterrent to war. It is apparent that no country can hope to win a war in which such weapons are used. One side might be damaged more severely than the other, but victory would only be a matter of degree of destruction.

Man cannot hide his head in the sand in the hope that when he looks out and up again he will discover that the atomic and hydrogen bomb were just bad dreams. The destructive force first unleashed at Hiroshima is with us to stay.

The same power that is utilized in bombs can be converted to useful, constructive ends. It can create a world of plenty for all if it is used wisely. The areas of the globe where there are no good sources of power can be made productive, the deserts can be made to bloom.

Since the dawn of recorded history there have been wars and always men of good will have sought ways of avoiding them. It is no longer a question, however, of how we can prevent wars but whether any trace of our civilization will survive if we don't. The alternatives are plain and inescapable: we must learn to live with the terrible force of the atom or we must expect to perish by it.

In this election year it is encouraging to see that our politicians still take their fearless stand against sin and in favor of mother, home and the flag.

HUMANITY'S SUICIDE

Ever since the recent H-bomb explosions in the Pacific, speculation has been great as to the magnitude of these blasts. Chairman Lewis L. Strauss has done a good deal to eliminate the guesswork.

We now know we are in possession of a bomb so powerful that just one will wipe out any city on earth, even the largest like London and New York.

All around the fringes of New York today are roadway signs saying that in event of enemy attack, "This road will be closed to regular civilian traffic." The signs assume that people would be alive to move in and out of a damaged area, and that military authorities would manage this traffic.

As we see from Strauss' comment, these signs may well be out of date. For a single hydrogen bomb could obliterate the entire New York metropolitan area. There might not be any traffic in or out.

This is just a way of pointing up the ghastliness of the prospect of nuclear warfare. Every human on earth must hope it never comes. If men on both sides of the Iron Curtain are not reading the news of these explosions with the grimmest concern, they are near to being mad. It is inconceivable that they would contemplate for any instant a kind of warfare that could well be humanity's suicide.

THE HISS PENSION

A number of bills have been introduced in the House of Representatives to prevent Alger Hiss from receiving a pension when he comes out of prison. Should no legislation be passed, Hiss will get his pension.

H.R. 1239, introduced by W. Sterling Cole of New York, is designed to deny benefits, under Civil Service or other Federal retirement systems, to persons convicted of felonies involving improper use of their authority, power, influence or privileges as officers or employes of the United States. This measure is now before the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

Similar bills, now before the same Committee, are H.R. 3301, introduced by Representative Frank M. Karsten of Missouri, H.R. 6940, introduced by Mrs. Katharine St. George of New York, H.R. 7381, introduced by Thomas A. Jenkins of Ohio, H.R. 7476, introduced by T. Millet Hand of New Jersey, and H.R. 8091, introduced by Richard H. Poff of Virginia.

Representative Kit Clardy of Michigan presented bill H.R. 5299, which deals specifically with Alger Hill. It reads:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That no part of the civil-service retirement and disability fund shall be used to pay an annuity to Alger Hiss. The Civil Service Commission, within 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, shall return to the said Alger Hiss the total amount to his credit in such fund."

Alger Hiss does not lose his pension rights because he went to prison. This pension is a contractual arrangement between an employer and an employe, often both sides contributing thereto, by which at a stated period the beneficiary will receive a stated amount. Hiss paid his share into the pension fund and that money is his. The share that he paid in can be returned to him under the terms of some of the bills, but it would be interesting to cogitate on how the courts would hold in a matter that involves a breach of contract or an alteration of the terms of a contract by an ex post facto law.

The question would arise as to whether the Government, as an employer, may violate a contract, by act of legislation which a private employer could not violate under any circumstances. As a matter of fact, the private employer is usually forced to set pension funds apart lest he not have them when required to meet his obligations. Surely, Hiss could get his own money back and it is probable that he would sue for the full amount and take his chances in the court.

In some of the legislation, a distinction is made between "retired pay" and "pension." No matter how one words it, if the prospective recipient of the benefit has entered into a contract and has paid into the fund, which is consideration, it raises a tricky question for the lawyers.

The subject is brought up only to show that it is not always so easy to do as one pleases in a political system in which the law and not the whims of man prevail. The simplest rule of life is "off with his head." But it may be your head or mine and we want protectives. Once the rights of man are recognized and protectives against whimsical tyranny are established, the rules that apply to the good apply equally to the wicked, and if the rules are relaxed so that the wicked may be punished, the good are placed in jeopardy. When it is said that this is a government of law, not of men, it means that the law applies to all, to the wicked as well as the good, and, of course, the wicked usually have the advantage.

Under such circumstances, it becomes increasingly difficult to work reprisals on such a man as Alger Hiss by withholding his pension. If he goes into court over such a question and should the court hold that despite his crime of perjury, he is entitled to his pension, he will get the money and he will use it as he chooses. Many lawyers say that the courts will have no alternative but to hold that his crime of perjury did not impair his contract as to a pension.

KEEPING BLOOD PRESSURE LOW

One of the dangerous but necessary operations done as an emergency—for example, in paralytic stroke or severe brain injury—is creating an opening in the skull—craniotomy.

Naturally, it is important that the blood pressure be kept low during this operation as high pressure might bring on another stroke. A method has, therefore, been devised to keep the blood pressure within a safe limit at this time.

In the British Lancet, Drs. S. Anderson and W. McKissock dicuss the control of blood pressure with Arfonad in surgery of the nerves and brain.

In fifty-two patients on whom major craniotomies were performed since March, 1953, at St. George's Hospital, London, low blood pressure was induced by Arfonad. Four patients died; three of these were poor subjects for major surgery. There was no reason to believe that inducing low blood pressure during operation influenced these fatalities."

All patients to whom Arfonad was administered had a fall in blood pressure; only in one instance was there a failure to lower blood pressure to the level requested by the surgeon. After the blood pressure had fallen, the low blood pressure state was easily maintained; only in two cases was it necessary to supplement Arfonad with procaine amide hydrochloride. Although Arfonad is short acting, the blood pressure was seldom restored as soon as the infusion stopped; there was usually a lapse of from 1 to 20 minutes before the pressure rose. These physicians explain that this disadvantage (failure of the blood pressure to rise immediately after Arfonad is discontinued) was overcome by flattening the table, with two exceptions. In two cases methamphetamine (methedrine) was injected to hasten the return to normal blood pressure.

One of the latest drugs to lower blood pressure is methonium compounds but these physicians found Arfonad superior to the methonium compounds for keeping blood pressure low, especially in surgery of brain and nerves in which low blood pressure is necessary. Because it is short acting, it gives the anesthetist greater control of blood pressure, reduces hemorrhage and tension.

However, Drs. Anderson and McKissock warn that Arfonad is not a complete answer to the dangers of high blood pressure. It should be used only in selected cases.

It is of interest to see that one of the problems of high blood pressure that is its danger during operations such as opening up the skull to expose the brain, is on its way to being solved.

Certainly Not Picnic Weather

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (AP) — The great new power of the H-bomb, plus the fact that some 289 human beings were distantly exposed to it, has whetted the interest of many people in knowing more about what constitutes a dangerous dose of radiation.

Bomb explosions or not, there is naturally, at all times, a certain amount of "background radiation" in the atmosphere. There have been a number of reports that the Geiger count on background radiation in the U. S. have gone up since the H-bomb tests in March. There have been a number of inquiries at the Atomic Energy Commission on whether there is any new or greater danger to the American people from this source than there was from the A-bomb tests.

AEC has a stock answer for all such queries. It doesn't tell much in detail. It admits that there has been a small increase in natural background radiation in the past month. This radioactivity is said to be still far below levels which are dangerous to animal and plant life. It will decrease rapidly until the radiation returns to its normal, ever-present levels.

This normal background radiation comes from radioactive materials in the earth's surface and from the cosmic rays from outer space. A layer of soil one foot deep and a mile square will contain on the average, a gram of radium, three tons of uranium and six tons of thorium. About six minute cosmic ray particles per minute cross a horizontal surface one inch square.

This background radiation is greater in mountainous regions than at sea level. It may be increased as much as ten times by rain or snowfall which seems to absorb radioactive particles in the air.

Radiation can be measured because it causes damage to the parts of the body through which it passes or in which it is absorbed. This process is called ionization. What it means is that the radiation causes the molecules in the body tissue, which carry no electrical charge, to break down into charged parts called ions.

The unit for measuring the ionizing effect of radiation is called the roentgen. It was named after the discoverer of the X-ray. The definition of a roentgen is so technical that only a scientist can understand it. The simplest thing for the average person is to take the roentgen for granted, like the horsepower or the kilowatt.

In more understandable terms, a routine intestinal X-ray examination exposes anyone to about one roentgen, or 1 r. of radiation. A small skin cancer could be exposed to 4000 r. of X-rays with no effect other than ionization of the cancer cells. But a single exposure of only 400 r. to all parts of the body at once would probably cause death to half the persons who got it.

The maximum safe exposure has been determined to be three tenths of one roentgen a week, indefinitely.

The natural background radiation in the U. S. has been measured as from eight one hundredths to eight tenths of one roentgen (0.08 r. to 0.8 r.) a year. This is obviously way under the limits of safe exposure given in the paragraph above.

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission maintains 121 observation stations all over the U. S. to keep a check on radiation count. Any time the radiation fall-out from atomic or hydrogen bomb explosion dust gets at all close to danger levels, they'll let you know.

President's TV Appearance Called Best of Any by Public Man

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 7—President Eisenhower made on Monday night the best television presentation any public man has made since the new medium has come to the American people. It was an outstanding performance because it was natural, informal and simple. Whether this was the result of careful coaching, or special training by the experts, the result offers a challenge to public speakers hereafter to match his style of delivery and simplicity.

Unlike some of the President's previous appearances when, with his eyes on a prompting device invisible to his audience, he has read lines that seemed to be poorly phrased from the standpoint of the hearers, this didn't seem to be a speech at all—it was just a talk.

In his informal conversations with callers the President has always seemed at ease, never lacking for a simple word or phrase to make a point. Now he has achieved the same sort of informality before the television cameras and that is, an important feat.

Regardless of the content of the talk—and opinions will differ on the merits of some sections of it—the net impression left on a fair-minded or unpartisan listener was one of sincerity and earnestness. His words carried conviction. The same kind of delivery in a political campaign would be tremendous on the vote-getting side. But it is precisely because Mr. Eisenhower wasn't asking for votes, and wasn't talking politics, that he attained the same kind of approval the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt won when he first delivered his non-partisan fireside chats.

There may be some question whether every public man can match the effect which Mr. Eisenhower's talk produced even if the informality of style in delivery were duplicated. There is something about the Eisenhower personality which is infectious. Perhaps it is the prestige of the positions he has held in critical times in the past, and perhaps it is because every one knows he isn't a self-seeking politician, but it is the Eisenhower personality after all which is the main reason for the effectiveness of the television style he now has mastered.

Curiously enough, there wasn't a lot of new information in what the President said, and some of the Democrats who have criticized the speech for that reason were perhaps disappointed because they expected some sort of profound utterance on the international situation.

Mr. Eisenhower, nevertheless said many implicitly important things, especially as he analyzed Soviet weaknesses on the economic side and repeated the idea of massive retaliation in the event that "in a fit of madness or through miscalculation" the persons in the Kremlin should start a big war.

Everything that the President said showed that he didn't believe a world war was in the offing. Certainly, he made it clear no war would ever be started on American initiative, so the question as to whether the H-bomb will actually destroy any human lives rests with a small group of men in Moscow. By pointing up this fact the President focused attention on the real source of potential trouble.

When Mr. Eisenhower dealt with other subjects, especially on the domestic side, he was somewhat vague. Generally speaking, he was reassuring about the business outlook and rightly pointed to the large number of employed in contrast with the small number who are unemployed. He did not attempt to give statistics, but it was quite apparent that the President exudes confidence about the readjustment in business now in progress.

One of the handicaps of the type of speech which the President tried is that in covering so many big subjects there isn't time enough to go into detail on any of them. His treatment of the issue of Communist penetration in government, for example, was all too brief, as was his discussion of the role of Congressional investigating committee. He properly stressed the fine job the F.B.I. has been doing. He omitted, however, mentioning that the F.B.I. did an equally good job under the preceding Administration. But this wasn't of as much avail because F.B.I. reports were ignored or minimized by the White House, especially in the Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White cases. Nor did Mr. Eisenhower explain that sometimes when the statute of limitations has run, no prosecutions can be instituted even if F.B.I. evidence is gathered. Then the only way to deal with those who have been engaged in the Communist cause is to expose them through Congressional hearings. If it were not for a House committee, Alger Hiss would not be in jail today, even though the F.B.I. had all the information in its files long before he was prosecuted for swearing falsely.

Mr. Eisenhower's talk on the whole has stimulated a lot of discussion in Congress—not so much because of what he said but how he said it. A new force in political campaigning has been perfected by Dwight Eisenhower.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

Animal Heroes

The heroes of World War 1 are not all found on the human roster. The part played by horses, mules, camels, oxen and dogs is well known. Pigeons flew messages. Canaries and white mice, because of their sensitivity to impure air, were carried in submarines and cats, geese and other creatures served as mascots in the various regiments.

"Quality Is Remembered Long After Price Is Forgotten"

The McCarthy Story

By BEM PRICE

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Less than three months after he was seated, in January 1947, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy tangled with his Bible-quoting Republican colleague from New Hampshire, the late Charles E. Tobey.

By the end of his first term McCarthy had in succession fought Sens. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, and William Benton of Connecticut. From Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and six colleagues his activities prompted a much-publicized "Declaration of Conscience."

Attacked Marshall

McCarthy also attacked Gen. George C. Marshall, the man who masterminded U. S. strategy during World War 2 and later served as Secretary of Defense and Secretary of State. President Truman had described Marshall as the greatest living American.

Marshall came in to the line of McCarthy's fire in 1950 by defending the integrity of Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup. McCarthy had said Jessup had an "unusual affinity for Communist causes."

On June 14, 1951, almost a year later, McCarthy in a 60,000-word speech linked Marshall's name to what he called "a conspiracy of infamy so black that, when it is finally exposed, its principals shall be forever deserving of the maledictions of all honest men."

At the time, McCarthy was discussing "the questions of why we fell from our position as the most powerful nation on earth at the end of World War 2."

Ignores McCarthy

For all practical purposes Marshall ignored the attack.

Of the five senators who crossed McCarthy, Republican Baldwin resigned, Democrats Tydings and Benton were defeated for re-election and Tobey died. Mrs. Smith, a Republican, is up for re-election this year and is opposed in the primary by a friend of McCarthy's who says that "McCarthyism" is an issue in the Maine senatorial campaign. In Maine, victory in the Republican primary is usually the same as being elected.

It was March 27, that McCarthy and Tobey clashed over sugar rationing. McCarthy, supporting a 20-pound increase in the annual ration, said he had been told by an Agriculture Department official this amount was feasible.

Tobey left the Senate floor and telephoned Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. Upon his return he said: "The Department of Agriculture's announced position was misrepresented by the senator from Wisconsin today."

McCarthy said: "I do not give a tinker's dam what Secretary Anderson says about the matter. The sugar is here."

Tobey's Report

Tobey reported: "On a question of veracity I do not choose between the two gentlemen, but on a question of fact I take the secretary of agriculture anytime."

In the end the Senate approved Tobey's proposal for a 10-pound increase, but with an amendment by McCarthy ending rationing five months earlier than then provided.

Until 1949 McCarthy remained relatively quiet. Then came the investigation of the series of massacres in Belgium in 1944 in which 350 American prisoners and 100 Belgian civilians were slaughtered.

Seventy-four Germans accused of participating in the horror were convicted. Forty-three were sentenced to execution.

Early in 1949 rumors made the rounds of the senate cloakroom that the Americans who investigated the massacres had used mental and physical torture to extract confessions.

On March 29 a subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee was set up to investigate the reports.

Three months later — July 26, 1949—McCarthy said in a Senate speech that he had studied the trials and had come to these conclusions:

"I felt very strongly that because of the actions of vengeance-minded, irresponsible and completely incompetent men representing this country in western Europe, our government had been placed in the position of condoning a brand of brutalitarianism worse than any practiced by the degenerate in either Hitler's or Stalin's camp."

No Evidence Reported

Two army boards had reported no evidence of physical torture but had criticized some parts of the pre-trial investigations, such as mock trials.

Baldwin was chairman of the subcommittee investigating the trials. While not a member of the subcommittee, McCarthy participated, with full rights of cross examination.

McCarthy repeatedly impugned the motives of the committee, saying it was attempting to "whitewash a shameful episode in the history of our glorious armed forces."

McCarthy also questioned Baldwin's fitness to sit on the committee at a hearing at which Baldwin's former law partner, Maj. Dwight Fanton, appeared. Fanton had been one of the investigators.

Ultimately the subcommittee unanimously concluded, as had the army, that the investigators had employed non-judicial means to gain information but not physical torture.

Part of Movement

The subcommittee said too that the agitation in Germany and America over the fate of the convicted Germans appeared to be part of an organized movement to discredit Americans abroad.

None of those sentenced to death has ever been executed.

Just before his row with McCarthy Baldwin had been offered a seat on the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors by Gov. Chester Bowles, a Democrat. Baldwin agreed to accept, reconsidered and then took the appointment after all.

When he resigned from the Senate, Baldwin said it was for health and family reasons and a desire to return home. A friend reports Baldwin was very much upset by the McCarthy fight and that in all probability "it weighed much in his final decision to resign."

McCarthy started his next fight in February 1950, when he charged that the Democratic administration, especially the State Department, was riddled with Communists and fellow travelers.

He kept up a barrage of charges and counter-charges that were to figure in the 1952 elections and which were to lead him into fights with Tydings and Benton.

McCarthy led off by accusing Tydings of a "whitewash" in the investigation of McCarthy's charges of communism in the administration. Tydings accused McCarthy of making false accusations.

The bitter fight between McCarthy and Tydings, veteran of 28 years in Congress, evolved in a personal feud that spilled over into Tydings' campaign for re-election in 1950.

Lost to Butler

In that year Tydings lost to John Marshall Butler, a Republican.

McCarthy personally went into Maryland on Butler's behalf, and there followed what a five-member Senate subcommittee described in a unanimous report as a "despicable, back street type of campaign."

There appeared in Maryland a composite photograph purporting to show Tydings talking to Communist leader Earl Browder. The fake picture showed up in a campaign tabloid which accused Tydings of "whitewash" in the communism-in-government investigation.

The elections subcommittee of the Senate Rules Committee said "the implication of such tactics as a threat to our American principles should be obvious and frightening." Three Democrats and two Republicans made up the subcommittee. One of the Republicans was Mrs. Smith.

After the subcommittee report was submitted McCarthy observed: "I am not surprised at the action of the two Republicans. After all, they went on record last year approving the Tydings 'whitewash' and condemning me for getting tough with Communists."

May Not Have Swung

McCarthy alone may not have swung the Maryland election. But whatever the reasons for Tydings' defeat — it gave McCarthy stature.

Tydings himself said in 1950 he believed the reason for his defeat was that the Maryland Democratic party was badly split by local issues. He added that he didn't think McCarthy personally did any damage.

"I think the issue raised and the propaganda about it had some effect, but it would be secondary," he said.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM) voiced the opinion on Nov. 5, 1951, while serving as chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, that McCarthy contributed substantially to Tydings' defeat.

Tydings says today: "I was the victim of the greatest lying campaign ever put on."

The Tydings campaign was to have echoes in McCarthy's bid for re-election in 1952. Tydings offered McCarthy $25,000 if he would go before any federal grand jury and offer evidence sufficient to convict any one who was in the State Department in 1950 as a Communist. McCarthy did not accept.

But even before McCarthy became embroiled with Tydings he was greeted in the Senate June 1, 1950, with a document that the author, Mrs. Smith, called "a declaration of conscience." It was signed by Mrs. Smith and six other Republican senators—Tobey, George D. Aiken of Vermont, Wayne L. Morse of Oregon, Irving M. Ives of New York, Edward J. Thye of Minnesota and Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey.

Aimed at Senator

While the declaration did not mention McCarthy by name, it was almost universally conceded to be aimed at McCarthy and his methods.

"We are Republicans. But we are Americans first. It is as Americans that we express our concern with the growing confusion that threatens the security and stability of our country. Democrats and Republicans alike have contributed to that confusion.

". . . Certain elements of the Republican party have materially added to this confusion in the hopes of riding the Republican party to victory through the selfish exploitation of fear, bigotry, ignorance and intolerance. There are enough mistakes of the Democrats for Republicans to criticize constructively without resorting to political smears. . . .

". . . It is high time we stopped being tools and victims of totalitarian techniques. . . ."

The gray-haired Mrs. Smith is running for re-election this year. Only opponent to announce against her so far in the Republican primary is Robert L. Jones, a personal friend of McCarthy's.

Jones has said that McCarthyism will be the basis of his fight against Mrs. Smith. He defines his term:

"Americanism consists of Mc-

By BEM PRICE

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Less than three months after he was seated, in January 1947, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy tangled with his Bible-quoting Republican colleague from New Hampshire, the late Charles E. Tobey.

By the end of his first term McCarthy had in succession fought Sens. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, and William Benton of Connecticut. From Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and six colleagues his activities prompted a much-publicized "Declaration of Conscience."

Attacked Marshall

McCarthy also attacked Gen. George C. Marshall, the man who masterminded U. S. strategy during World War 2 and later served as Secretary of Defense and Secretary of State. President Truman had described Marshall as the greatest living American.

Marshall came in to the line of McCarthy's fire in 1950 by defending the integrity of Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup. McCarthy had said Jessup had an "unusual affinity for Communist causes."

On June 14, 1951, almost a year later, McCarthy in a 60,000-word speech linked Marshall's name to what he called "a conspiracy of infamy so black that, when it is finally exposed, its principals shall be forever deserving of the maledictions of all honest men."

At the time, McCarthy was discussing "the questions of why we fell from our position as the most powerful nation on earth at the end of World War 2."

Ignores McCarthy

For all practical purposes Marshall ignored the attack.

Of the five senators who crossed McCarthy, Republican Baldwin resigned, Democrats Tydings and Benton were defeated for re-election and Tobey died. Mrs. Smith, a Republican, is up for re-election this year and is opposed in the primary by a friend of McCarthy's who says that "McCarthyism" is an issue in the Maine senatorial campaign. In Maine, victory in the Republican primary is usually the same as being elected.

It was March 27, that McCarthy and Tobey clashed over sugar rationing. McCarthy, supporting a 20-pound increase in the annual ration, said he had been told by an Agriculture Department official this amount was feasible.

Tobey left the Senate floor and telephoned Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. Upon his return he said: "The Department of Agriculture's announced position was misrepresented by the senator from Wisconsin today."

McCarthy said: "I do not give a tinker's dam what Secretary Anderson says about the matter. The sugar is here."

Tobey's Report

Tobey reported: "On a question of veracity I do not choose between the two gentlemen, but on a question of fact I take the secretary of agriculture anytime."

In the end the Senate approved Tobey's proposal for a 10-pound increase, but with an amendment by McCarthy ending rationing five months earlier than then provided.

Until 1949 McCarthy remained relatively quiet. Then came the investigation of the series of massacres in Belgium in 1944 in which 350 American prisoners and 100 Belgian civilians were slaughtered.

Seventy-four Germans accused of participating in the horror were convicted. Forty-three were sentenced to execution.

Early in 1949 rumors made the rounds of the senate cloakroom that the Americans who investigated the massacres had used mental and physical torture to extract confessions.

On March 29 a subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee was set up to investigate the reports.

Three months later — July 26, 1949—McCarthy said in a Senate speech that he had studied the trials and had come to these conclusions:

"I felt very strongly that because of the actions of vengeance-minded, irresponsible and completely incompetent men representing this country in western Europe, our government had been placed in the position of condoning a brand of brutalitarianism worse than any practiced by the degenerate in either Hitler's or Stalin's camp."

No Evidence Reported

Two army boards had reported no evidence of physical torture but had criticized some parts of the pre-trial investigations, such as mock trials.

Baldwin was chairman of the subcommittee investigating the trials. While not a member of the subcommittee, McCarthy participated, with full rights of cross examination.

McCarthy repeatedly impugned the motives of the committee, saying it was attempting to "whitewash a shameful episode in the history of our glorious armed forces."

McCarthy also questioned Baldwin's fitness to sit on the committee at a hearing at which Baldwin's former law partner, Maj. Dwight Fanton, appeared. Fanton had been one of the investigators.

Ultimately the subcommittee unanimously concluded, as had the army, that the investigators had employed non-judicial means to gain information but not physical torture.

Part of Movement

The subcommittee said too that the agitation in Germany and America over the fate of the convicted Germans appeared to be part of an organized movement to discredit Americans abroad.

None of those sentenced to death has ever been executed.

Just before his row with McCarthy Baldwin had been offered a seat on the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors by Gov. Chester Bowles, a Democrat. Baldwin agreed to accept, reconsidered and then took the appointment after all.

When he resigned from the Senate, Baldwin said it was for health and family reasons and a desire to return home. A friend reports Baldwin was very much upset by the McCarthy fight and that in all probability "it weighed much in his final decision to resign."

McCarthy started his next fight in February 1950, when he charged that the Democratic administration, especially the State Department, was riddled with Communists and fellow travelers.

He kept up a barrage of charges and counter-charges that were to figure in the 1952 elections and which were to lead him into fights with Tydings and Benton.

McCarthy led off by accusing Tydings of a "whitewash" in the investigation of McCarthy's charges of communism in the administration. Tydings accused McCarthy of making false accusations.

The bitter fight between McCarthy and Tydings, veteran of 28 years in Congress, evolved in a personal feud that spilled over into Tydings' campaign for re-election in 1950.

Lost to Butler

In that year Tydings lost to John Marshall Butler, a Republican.

McCarthy personally went into Maryland on Butler's behalf, and there followed what a five-member Senate subcommittee described in a unanimous report as a "despicable, back street type of campaign."

There appeared in Maryland a composite photograph purporting to show Tydings talking to Communist leader Earl Browder. The fake picture showed up in a campaign tabloid which accused Tydings of "whitewash" in the communism-in-government investigation.

The elections subcommittee of the Senate Rules Committee said "the implication of such tactics as a threat to our American principles should be obvious and frightening." Three Democrats and two Republicans made up the subcommittee. One of the Republicans was Mrs. Smith.

After the subcommittee report was submitted McCarthy observed: "I am not surprised at the action of the two Republicans. After all, they went on record last year approving the Tydings 'whitewash' and condemning me for getting tough with Communists."

May Not Have Swung

McCarthy alone may not have swung the Maryland election. But whatever the reasons for Tydings' defeat — it gave McCarthy stature.

Tydings himself said in 1950 he believed the reason for his defeat was that the Maryland Democratic party was badly split by local issues. He added that he didn't think McCarthy personally did any damage.

"I think the issue raised and the propaganda about it had some effect, but it would be secondary," he said.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM) voiced the opinion on Nov. 5, 1951, while serving as chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, that McCarthy contributed substantially to Tydings' defeat.

Tydings says today: "I was the victim of the greatest lying campaign ever put on."

The Tydings campaign was to have echoes in McCarthy's bid for re-election in 1952. Tydings offered McCarthy $25,000 if he would go before any federal grand jury and offer evidence sufficient to convict any one who was in the State Department in 1950 as a Communist. McCarthy did not accept.

But even before McCarthy became embroiled with Tydings he was greeted in the Senate June 1, 1950, with a document that the author, Mrs. Smith, called "a declaration of conscience." It was signed by Mrs. Smith and six other Republican senators—Tobey, George D. Aiken of Vermont, Wayne L. Morse of Oregon, Irving M. Ives of New York, Edward J. Thye of Minnesota and Robert C. Hendrickson of New Jersey.

Aimed at Senator

While the declaration did not mention McCarthy by name, it was almost universally conceded to be aimed at McCarthy and his methods.

"We are Republicans. But we are Americans first. It is as Americans that we express our concern with the growing confusion that threatens the security and stability of our country. Democrats and Republicans alike have contributed to that confusion.

". . . Certain elements of the Republican party have materially added to this confusion in the hopes of riding the Republican party to victory through the selfish exploitation of fear, bigotry, ignorance and intolerance. There are enough mistakes of the Democrats for Republicans to criticize constructively without resorting to political smears. . . .

". . . It is high time we stopped being tools and victims of totalitarian techniques. . . ."

The gray-haired Mrs. Smith is running for re-election this year. Only opponent to announce against her so far in the Republican primary is Robert L. Jones, a personal friend of McCarthy's.

Jones has said that McCarthyism will be the basis of his fight against Mrs. Smith. He defines his term:

"Americanism consists of Mc-

McCarthy Story

Carthyism. McCarthyism represents to me the ferreting-out of Communists."

The toughest of McCarthy's early fights in the Senate was the effort to unseat him.

Introduces Resolution

On Aug. 6, 1951, Sen. Benton, Democratic successor to Baldwin, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation to determine whether expulsion proceedings should be instituted against McCarthy. The latter counter-attacked with a resolution to investigate Benton.

The results were embodied in another report of an elections subcommittee.

McCarthy refused throughout to testify before the committee. Benton testified twice, once during investigation of himself and once when the subcommittee was delving into McCarthy's activities.

On Sept. 28, 1951, Benton appeared before the committee and in a long statement cited 10 cases in which he accused McCarthy of lying, of accepting "influence money" and of practicing fraud and deceit upon the Senate.

Benton specifically waived his senatorial immunity both before the committee and later. Subsequently McCarthy filed a two million dollar libel suit against him, but when trial neared, early this year, McCarthy dropped the matter.

McCarthy said he couldn't prove he had been damaged because he couldn't find anyone who believed Benton's charges. Benton said 2,000 persons had written him that they would volunteer to say they believed the charges.

In the end, the three-man subcommittee investigating McCarthy said the matter transcended partisan politics "and goes to the very core of the Senate body's authority, integrity and the respect in which it is held by the people of this country."

The subcommittee raised a series of questions which it said only McCarthy could answer. Since he had refused to appear, it said it could do nothing but report the matter to the Senate without recommendation.

Sat on Committees

The subcommittee said McCarthy sat during the 80th Congress on committees which had jurisdiction over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the housing agencies.

One of the interested parties appearing before the subcommittee was the Luston Corporation, which was indebted to RFC. Lustron paid McCarthy $10,000 for an article on housing.

The subcommittee asked whether there was any connection between sale of the article and McCarthy's recommendation for government aid to housing prefabricators.

It found that McCarthy had sold 1,000 shares of Seaboard Air Line Railroad stock for a net profit of $35,614.75 and that he still held 950 shares.

It asked whether there was a relationship between McCarthy's position on the banking committee and "his receipt of confidential information relating to the stock of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad, which was indebted to RFC for sums in excess of $15,000?"

The subcommittee asked, too, whether any of the funds received by McCarthy to fight communism had been diverted to his own use. McCarthy said "no" in a letter, but the subcommittee noted he had not made himself "available for further explanation."

The subcommittee asked the source of $17,600 reported as contributed by relatives to McCarthy in 1944 for his unsuccessful primary campaign against Sen. Alexander Wiley. These relatives did not appear to have that much money.

Was Cash His?

It wanted to know whether the $17,600 was in realtity McCarthy's own money and, if so, was he in violation of a state law setting a $5,000 limitation on personal campaign expenditures?

McCarthy denounced the subcommittee's report as a "new low in dishonesty and smear" and defied the subcommittee to challenge his seat. There was no challenge.

As for the Benton investigation, the subcommittee found he had improperly accepted a $600 contribution from an ex-RFC member for campaign funds but called the charges "moot" since he no longer was in office.

The subcommittee's findings were turned over to the Department of Justice. On Oct. 16, 1953, Attorney General Herbert Brownell gave McCarthy a clean bill of health on the questions of personal finances and possible election law violations.

Brownell added that the internal revenue service still was investigating McCarthy's income tax return. As far as has been disclosed, it still is.

The Justice Department head also cleared Benton of the subcommittee's findings in connection with the acceptance of the $600.

The question immediately broached in connection with Benton's 1952 defeat was whether McCarthy contributed materially.

Benton said in an interview in New York, "my state chairman, John Bailey, thinks McCarthy had a small effect, possibly on a few thousand votes. This was inconsequential when you consider that my margin of defeat was about 80,000 votes...

"I think the best explanation is that Eisenhower was the strongest factor in my state as in many others. I was defeated in the general swing to him.

Got More Votes

"It is my opinion that I got more votes in Connecticut because of my stand against McCarthy than I lost because of that stand."

Benton said that in 1952 McCarthy went into five states where the man he opposed turned out to be the winner—Washington, Missouri, Montana, West Virginia and New Mexico.

The former Connecticut senator added that in the five other states in which McCarthy appeared in 1952 "the Democratic candidates for the Senate did better than could be expected.

In these 10 states McCarthy was campaigning on behalf of the party ticket, rather than to support individuals.

The question immediately broached in connection with Benton's 1952 defeat was whether McCarthy contributed materially.

Benton said in an interview in New York, "my state chairman, John Bailey, thinks McCarthy had a small effect, possibly on a few thousand votes. This was inconsequential when you consider that my margin of defeat was about 80,000 votes...

"I think the best explanation is that Eisenhower was the strongest factor in my state as in many others. I was defeated in the general swing to him.

Got More Votes

"It is my opinion that I got more votes in Connecticut because of my stand against McCarthy than I lost because of that stand."

Benton said that in 1952 McCarthy went into five states where the man he opposed turned out to be the winner—Washington, Missouri, Montana, West Virginia and New Mexico.

The former Connecticut senator added that in the five other states in which McCarthy appeared in 1952 "the Democratic candidates for the Senate did better than could be expected.

In these 10 states McCarthy was campaigning on behalf of the party ticket, rather than to support individuals.

County and municipal employes who earn less than $5,000 a year—except law enforcement officers—may work at tracks if authorized to do so by their local governing bodies.

Otherwise, the restrictions cover all state and local full-time employes, members of the state and local legislative bodies and political party officials down to the county committee level.

Those among them who hold race track stock must dispose of their holdings by May 1, 1955, or face removal from office. The rest of the legislation is effective next Aug. 1.

TV System Makes Bid to Get 'Piped-In' Franchise Locally

A bid on behalf of the Kingston Community TV System, Inc., was made by Attorney John L. Larkin before the Common Council last night for a franchise on a "piping in" television reception system that would eliminate the need of present type TV antennae.

The proposal was referred to the corporation counsel and laws and rules committee.

The concern, asking for the franchise, Larkin said, would work in conjunction with the N. Y. Telephone Co., and Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., in establishing a master television antennae system, which would wire in the programs and dispense with individual antennae.

Promises Strong Signal

Is is planned to start work in about a month, he said, and the system would establish a "strong signal" on every channel.

The concern is one of experience and has established the system on Long Island, it will post required insurance and liability "and meet every requirement you may set." A high tower would be erected and the concern will set up test patterns. They only receive and retransmit programs, he said.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, said that as chairman of the laws and rules committee he felt the committee should have facts and figures, and Larkin said they would be supplied.

The attorney indicated to a reporter that the system could work on a countywide basis.

Korean Says . . .

ence," Dr. Limb said. Rhee attended colleges in the U. S., including Harvard and Princeton, where he received a Ph.D. from the hands of Woodrow Wilson.

During the 40 years, Japanese ruled the Korean people, until they were driven out in 1945.

After 1945, elections were held with the cooperation and under supervision of the United Nations, and Syngman Rhee was elected president "by an overwhelming majority," Dr. Limb pointed out.

When the Communists attempted to take over the country later, "for three days we were mowed down," but then the United States troops landed to give Korean people new hope. "You can live without shoes, without overcoats, without hats, but you cannot live without hope," he said.

Are Truly Grateful

"The people of Korea are truly and deeply grateful," Dr. Limb said, for the military assistance, and for the economic assistance which followed the war.

Explaining how American aid will "help us to help ourselves," Dr. Limb pointed out that—before the devastation of war — Korea raised enough food in its southern part to supply all its 30 million people and have some left for export.

Other resources enumerated by Dr. Limb included the country's tungsten, graphite, tin, coal, iron and other mines, its 11,000 miles of coast line from which in normal times two million tons of fish are taken, and its nine million laborers ready to produce as soon as factories can be rebuilt.

Speaking of the resourcefulness of the Korean people through history, Dr. Limb said that Koreans were using movable metal printing type 50 years before Gutenberg, had iron-clad battleships 300 years before the Monitor and the Merrimac; published an encyclopedia 1,000 years ago, and claims the oldest existing solar observatory in the world, built 1,300 years ago and still standing in Korea near the city of Taegu.

Dr. Limb was introduced by Lawrence M. Jenson, first vice president of the Lions Club, who pointed out that the guest speaker entered diplomatic service in 1919, after an education in his country and abroad, including a period at Ohio State University in this country. He presently is ambassador to this country from Korea and also permanent Korean delegate to the United Nations.

Welcomed by Mayor

The ambassador was welcomed to the city and meeting by Mayor Frederick H. Stang, who noted that although 10 or 12 years ago Korea was just a "name in the geography book," during the recent war "we all respected and admired the valiant stand that nation has taken in its determination to protect its own rights."

Jenson, who was program chairman for the day, credited Harold Whitford, director of public relations for American Relief to Korea, Inc., for obtaining the speaker, which Jenson said was an "unusual honor" for the city. Whitford was present and was introduced.

William H. Stall, president of the Lions Club, presided at the meeting. Also seated at the speakers' table were Hubert Hoderath, president of Kiwanis, and Lawrence V. Bogert, president of Rotary. Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom, Lions Club chaplain, gave the invocation. Music was provided by Roger Baer.

For Dr. Limb's movements in the city in meeting his engagements during the afternoon, the Kingston Police Department provided him with a motorcycle escort by Officer Ernest Bartroff.

lieve in collective security. Now is the time to step up and be counted," he declared.

President Eisenhower is expected to be questioned at his news conference today about a suggestion by Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) that he report to Congress on Indochina policies.

The President has sent to Congress a recommendation it make available $1,133,000,000—nearly a third of the entire new foreign aid budget he submitted—to support the French and their Indochinese associates, in the fighting.

'Ought to Tell'

Jackson, declared he doesn't want the free world to be pushed to the alternatives of withdrawal or all-out war, said Eisenhower ought to "tell us what he expects of Congress and the United States."

Jackson told the Senate yesterday an informed Congress could pass a resolution showing it was behind the administration's policy. "Hopes and aspirations" regarding Indochina.

The President was also expected to be asked about reports abroad that the United States is trying to arrange for a five-power warning to the Chinese Communists against any major aggressive move toward Indochina and southeast Asia in general.

Senators Oppose

less the Russians attack us."

"If we have time to consult with our allies, well and good," he said, "but if we are attacked, we will strike back and there will be no time for any consultation."

Secretary of State Dulles has indicated that a situation might arise in which such retaliation would be launched in response to Communist aggression which did not involve a direct attack on this country.

Sen. Anderson (D.-N.M.), a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said that if it became necessary to launch "instant retaliation" such would be no time for consultation.

Chairman Wiley (R.-Wis.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the 1943 agreement has served its purpose and he sees no reason to renew it now.

But Sen. Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said, "I certainly think Britain should be consulted before we use the hydrogen bomb."

Reports Damage to Car

Leo Kelly, of 94 Prince street, reported to police headquarters at 8:59 p. m., yesterday that a manhole cover in the Broadway underpass flew up under his car and damaged the radiator. It was the one nearest Pine Grove avenue, he said. Officer Bernard Fowler investigated and Officers William Slover and Julius Glassman, who inspected the other covers, reported them safely in place. The mishap occurred during last night's rain.

TV System Makes Bid to Get 'Piped-In' Franchise Locally

A bid on behalf of the Kingston Community TV System, Inc., was made by Attorney John L. Larkin before the Common Council last night for a franchise on a "piping in" television reception system that would eliminate the need of present type TV antennae.

The proposal was referred to the corporation counsel and laws and rules committee.

The concern, asking for the franchise, Larkin said, would work in conjunction with the N. Y. Telephone Co., and Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., in establishing a master television antennae system, which would wire in the programs and dispense with individual antennae.

Promises Strong Signal

Is is planned to start work in about a month, he said, and the system would establish a "strong signal" on every channel.

The concern is one of experience and has established the system on Long Island, it will post required insurance and liability "and meet every requirement you may set." A high tower would be erected and the concern will set up test patterns. They only receive and retransmit programs, he said.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, said that as chairman of the laws and rules committee he felt the committee should have facts and figures, and Larkin said they would be supplied.

The attorney indicated to a reporter that the system could work on a countywide basis.

Korean Says . . .

ence," Dr. Limb said. Rhee attended colleges in the U. S., including Harvard and Princeton, where he received a Ph.D. from the hands of Woodrow Wilson.

During the 40 years, Japanese ruled the Korean people, until they were driven out in 1945.

After 1945, elections were held with the cooperation and under supervision of the United Nations, and Syngman Rhee was elected president "by an overwhelming majority," Dr. Limb pointed out.

When the Communists attempted to take over the country later, "for three days we were mowed down," but then the United States troops landed to give Korean people new hope. "You can live without shoes, without overcoats, without hats, but you cannot live without hope," he said.

Are Truly Grateful

"The people of Korea are truly and deeply grateful," Dr. Limb said, for the military assistance, and for the economic assistance which followed the war.

Explaining how American aid will "help us to help ourselves," Dr. Limb pointed out that—before the devastation of war — Korea raised enough food in its southern part to supply all its 30 million people and have some left for export.

Other resources enumerated by Dr. Limb included the country's tungsten, graphite, tin, coal, iron and other mines, its 11,000 miles of coast line from which in normal times two million tons of fish are taken, and its nine million laborers ready to produce as soon as factories can be rebuilt.

Speaking of the resourcefulness of the Korean people through history, Dr. Limb said that Koreans were using movable metal printing type 50 years before Gutenberg, had iron-clad battleships 300 years before the Monitor and the Merrimac; published an encyclopedia 1,000 years ago, and claims the oldest existing solar observatory in the world, built 1,300 years ago and still standing in Korea near the city of Taegu.

Dr. Limb was introduced by Lawrence M. Jenson, first vice president of the Lions Club, who pointed out that the guest speaker entered diplomatic service in 1919, after an education in his country and abroad, including a period at Ohio State University in this country. He presently is ambassador to this country from Korea and also permanent Korean delegate to the United Nations.

Welcomed by Mayor

The ambassador was welcomed to the city and meeting by Mayor Frederick H. Stang, who noted that although 10 or 12 years ago Korea was just a "name in the geography book," during the recent war "we all respected and admired the valiant stand that nation has taken in its determination to protect its own rights."

Jenson, who was program chairman for the day, credited Harold Whitford, director of public relations for American Relief to Korea, Inc., for obtaining the speaker, which Jenson said was an "unusual honor" for the city. Whitford was present and was introduced.

William H. Stall, president of the Lions Club, presided at the meeting. Also seated at the speakers' table were Hubert Hoderath, president of Kiwanis, and Lawrence V. Bogert, president of Rotary. Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom, Lions Club chaplain, gave the invocation. Music was provided by Roger Baer.

For Dr. Limb's movements in the city in meeting his engagements during the afternoon, the Kingston Police Department provided him with a motorcycle escort by Officer Ernest Bartroff.

President Eisenhower is expected to be questioned at his news conference today about a suggestion by Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) that he report to Congress on Indochina policies.

The President has sent to Congress a recommendation it make available $1,133,000,000—nearly a third of the entire new foreign aid budget he submitted—to support the French and their Indochinese associates, in the fighting.

'Ought to Tell'

Jackson, declared he doesn't want the free world to be pushed to the alternatives of withdrawal or all-out war, said Eisenhower ought to "tell us what he expects of Congress and the United States."

Jackson told the Senate yesterday an informed Congress could pass a resolution showing it was behind the administration's policy. "Hopes and aspirations" regarding Indochina.

The President was also expected to be asked about reports abroad that the United States is trying to arrange for a five-power warning to the Chinese Communists against any major aggressive move toward Indochina and southeast Asia in general.

less the Russians attack us."

"If we have time to consult with our allies, well and good," he said, "but if we are attacked, we will strike back and there will be no time for any consultation."

Secretary of State Dulles has indicated that a situation might arise in which such retaliation would be launched in response to Communist aggression which did not involve a direct attack on this country.

Sen. Anderson (D.-N.M.), a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said that if it became necessary to launch "instant retaliation" such would be no time for consultation.

Chairman Wiley (R.-Wis.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the 1943 agreement has served its purpose and he sees no reason to renew it now.

But Sen. Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said, "I certainly think Britain should be consulted before we use the hydrogen bomb."

Reports Damage to Car

Leo Kelly, of 94 Prince street, reported to police headquarters at 8:59 p. m., yesterday that a manhole cover in the Broadway underpass flew up under his car and damaged the radiator. It was the one nearest Pine Grove avenue, he said. Officer Bernard Fowler investigated and Officers William Slover and Julius Glassman, who inspected the other covers, reported them safely in place. The mishap occurred during last night's rain.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I have been asked who was the Mr. Phillips who bought the Dr. Kennedy medicine business back in 1890. According to an 1896 Kingston City Directory, Augustus Phillips was manager of Dr. Kennedy's Corporation and lived at 15 Green street. According to a book called Prominent Business Men of Ulster County Augustus J. Phillips bought the business from Dr. David Kennedy in 1890 and formed the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation of Rondout. Mr. Phillips became its president and expanded the business so that it spread all over the world, especialy the European countries. In Kingston he was well known and liked for he served on the Board of Health, and was three years a water commissioner and also secretary of the board. He was a member of the Kingston and Rondout Clubs as well as member of many New York and Albany clubs. It seems he came from a well known family in Albany and kept contact with his friends and clubs there. He had the honor of being one of the first American members of the Ex. Libris Assn. of London. His hobby was books, and he was the proud possessor of one of the best libraries in this section of the country. It is said his collection of pictures, etchings and engravings, especially of Napoleon, was known throughout the country."

I remember Henry Singer telling me that he used to help paste on labels on the Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy perhaps others also may remember Mr. Phillips. According to a 1910 Kingston City Directory, Augustus J. Phillips removed to New York. According to a 1906 Kingston Directory, Dr. David Kennedy's estate is listed as 29 Broadway.

Dr. David Kennedy and Sons, manufacturers, Favorite Remedy are listed at 34 Ferry street. Mrs. David Kennedy, widow's home is listed as, Broadway, corner East Chestnut street. Gilbert F. Kennedy, lawyer, (Dr. David Kennedy's Sons and Cal-Cura Co.) also is listed at 29 Broadway and home at 14 East Chestnut street. I remember once on a lovely sunny day, a surrey, with a fringe-on-top came down Broadway and parked right at Kennedy's office lower Broadway. I think we took a snap shot of it and everyone told us it belonged to the Kennedy's. It was a handsome equippage with a light cream colored top, as I remember. Perhaps others remember it.

Looking in the 1905-6 Kingston City Directory I see a whole page devoted to Walker and Paine Livery of 70 John street having both the Hudson River and Citizen's Standard telephones. Owners were A. S. Walker and L. J. Paine. 70 John street must be where the parking lot is now. I see under the listing of "artists" R. Lionel De Lisser at 45 Crown street. I think he put out the Picturesque Ulster series which many of us still own. Mrs. Julia Dillon is listed at 109 Pearl street. Under, bakeries, I see National Biscuit Co. at 640-642 Broadway. Mohican Co. was at 313 Wall street at the time. There were three Salzmanns listed at different addresses. Christian Schwenk was at 201 Foxhall avenue. Gustav Teichler was at 145 Hasbrouck avenue and Mrs. Mary W. Mellert was at 80 Broadway. I think later Ike Delamater bought her place and ran it as a bakery, when I remember it.

Ballantine Beer watches your belt-line

...with fewer calories than any other leading beer

You'll be happy to know that today's leading beers are all lower in calories. None contains starch, and there's not more than a negligible trace of sugar in any of them.

But, if you're counting up your calorie quota, Ballantine is definitely the beer for you. Ballantine's own laboratory analysis, carried on over a period of years . . . amply substantiated by independent laboratory tests . . . shows that Ballantine Beer has fewer calories than any other leading beer.

Ballantine is the product of 114 years of brewing experience. Brewed from nature's finest barley malt and hops, it has the same full flavor and fine character that have made it one of America's largest selling beers.

Next time, ask the man for Ballantine—the low-calorie beer with the famous flavor that chill can't kill.

HOBBY HORSES

There's a relatively well-to-do man in New York who, for the past 18 years, has been having a lot of fun out of a heartwarming hobby at, I think, no great cost to himself.

His name is Hugo S. Stix, and during business hours he is sales manager of Seeman Brothers, the well-known wholesale grocers. At night and weekends, he runs The Artists's Gallery at 851 Lexington avenue, a nonprofit setup where he exhibits and sells the paintings and sculpture of unknown artists.

Back in the early '30's, when Hugo was studying Art History at Harvard, he realized how difficult it was for a painter to get started. True, there were a dozen established art galleries on and around Fifty-seventh street, but a beginner had about as much chance of hanging his pictures on their velveteened walls as I would, let's say, of getting a date with Greta Garbo.

So Brother Stix, shortly after he got out of college, set out to do what he could to correct the situation. In 1936, he rented an inexpensive store on West Eighth street and opened a gallery where only unknown artists could exhibit. His "Artists' Gallery" had only two rules: (A) If a painting or sculpture were sold, the artist would pocket every penny of the proceeds. (Commercial galleries usually cut themselves in for 30 per cent or better). (B) As soon as an artist "hit," and one of the uptown outfits was interested in taking him on, he was expected to leave, because the sooner he left the sooner the gallery could make room for another Joe Nobody.

Mr. Stix recently told me that on the day of his official opening in 1936, so few people showed up that he and the artist drank up the whole pitcher of Martinis which had been fixed for the customers. The premiere, in other words, was a howling success, except that Hugo and the artist did all the howling.

Since 1936, Hugo has presented more than 100 one-man shows, and has introduced some 400 painters and sculptors to critics and art lovers. Approximately 30 of his nonpaying proteges have become successful and solvent—James Lechay, Byron Brown and Saul Baizerman, to mention a few. And it is generally conceded that The Artists' Gallery, small as it is, has played, and is continuing to play an important part in the development of our native culture.

A few years ago, Hugo moved his gallery to Lexington Avenue, and its current overhead is about $11,000 a year. A good part of the money, however, comes from outside contributions which are deductible. I, of course, have no way of knowing how much of the tab Hugo himself picks up these days, but it's my best guess that it's a lot less than many a man in his circumstances shells out for golf, horses or blondes.

It's also my best guess that few men in this country have had as much fun out of a hobby as this enlightened groceryman. For almost two decades he has not only enjoyed the prestige of directing an important art gallery, but has also had the fun of discovering talent and giving it the break it so seldom gets . . .

Another, and better known, hobbyist I'd like to discuss is Senor Porfirio Rubirosa, the Caribbean diplomat who collects wealthy wives.

As I see it, the best known of the Latin lovers doesn't quite rate the kicking-around he has been getting because he walked out on Miss Barbara Hutton.

To begin with, this husky, well-mannered gent has been living his life pretty much in the Horatio Alger tradition in which, as you know, the hero almost invariably married the boss' daughter.

The first of Rubirosa's four brides, as statjsticians will recall, was the daughter of the President of the Dominican Republic. His second or third wife, I'm not sure which, was Miss Doris Duke, the daughter of the boss of American Tobacco. The father of his last bride, Miss Hutton, was boss of Woolworth's.

Recently, when accused of marrying for money, the Dominican diplomat, in a display of impeccable statesmanship, pointed out that he had divorced Doris Duke, worth $400,000,000, to marry Barbara Hutton, who has only $40,000,000. Mr. Rubirosa added, with unassailable logic, that this was not the behavior of a mercenary man—and I think the figures speak for themselves.

Like Mr. Stix, Mr. Rubirosa seems to divide his time between business and his hobby. Days, he looks after the interests of the Dominican Republic as its Ambassador-at-Large. After business hours he tries to make wealthy women happy by marrying them. Mr. Rubirosa's principal problem, like Mr. Stix's, is how to accommodate all the applicants who come knocking at his door. And the diplomat's solution, it seems, is the same as the gallery owner's: to encourage his clients to move on so he can make room for fresh talent.

Everything considered, I think Senor Rubirosa deserves well of the Republic.

The Dominican Republic, that is.

HOBBY HORSES

There's a relatively well-to-do man in New York who, for the past 18 years, has been having a lot of fun out of a heartwarming hobby at, I think, no great cost to himself.

His name is Hugo S. Stix, and during business hours he is sales manager of Seeman Brothers, the well-known wholesale grocers. At night and weekends, he runs The Artists's Gallery at 851 Lexington avenue, a nonprofit setup where he exhibits and sells the paintings and sculpture of unknown artists.

Back in the early '30's, when Hugo was studying Art History at Harvard, he realized how difficult it was for a painter to get started. True, there were a dozen established art galleries on and around Fifty-seventh street, but a beginner had about as much chance of hanging his pictures on their velveteened walls as I would, let's say, of getting a date with Greta Garbo.

So Brother Stix, shortly after he got out of college, set out to do what he could to correct the situation. In 1936, he rented an inexpensive store on West Eighth street and opened a gallery where only unknown artists could exhibit. His "Artists' Gallery" had only two rules: (A) If a painting or sculpture were sold, the artist would pocket every penny of the proceeds. (Commercial galleries usually cut themselves in for 30 per cent or better). (B) As soon as an artist "hit," and one of the uptown outfits was interested in taking him on, he was expected to leave, because the sooner he left the sooner the gallery could make room for another Joe Nobody.

Mr. Stix recently told me that on the day of his official opening in 1936, so few people showed up that he and the artist drank up the whole pitcher of Martinis which had been fixed for the customers. The premiere, in other words, was a howling success, except that Hugo and the artist did all the howling.

Since 1936, Hugo has presented more than 100 one-man shows, and has introduced some 400 painters and sculptors to critics and art lovers. Approximately 30 of his nonpaying proteges have become successful and solvent—James Lechay, Byron Brown and Saul Baizerman, to mention a few. And it is generally conceded that The Artists' Gallery, small as it is, has played, and is continuing to play an important part in the development of our native culture.

A few years ago, Hugo moved his gallery to Lexington Avenue, and its current overhead is about $11,000 a year. A good part of the money, however, comes from outside contributions which are deductible. I, of course, have no way of knowing how much of the tab Hugo himself picks up these days, but it's my best guess that it's a lot less than many a man in his circumstances shells out for golf, horses or blondes.

It's also my best guess that few men in this country have had as much fun out of a hobby as this enlightened groceryman. For almost two decades he has not only enjoyed the prestige of directing an important art gallery, but has also had the fun of discovering talent and giving it the break it so seldom gets . . .

Another, and better known, hobbyist I'd like to discuss is Senor Porfirio Rubirosa, the Caribbean diplomat who collects wealthy wives.

As I see it, the best known of the Latin lovers doesn't quite rate the kicking-around he has been getting because he walked out on Miss Barbara Hutton.

To begin with, this husky, well-mannered gent has been living his life pretty much in the Horatio Alger tradition in which, as you know, the hero almost invariably married the boss' daughter.

The first of Rubirosa's four brides, as statjsticians will recall, was the daughter of the President of the Dominican Republic. His second or third wife, I'm not sure which, was Miss Doris Duke, the daughter of the boss of American Tobacco. The father of his last bride, Miss Hutton, was boss of Woolworth's.

Recently, when accused of marrying for money, the Dominican diplomat, in a display of impeccable statesmanship, pointed out that he had divorced Doris Duke, worth $400,000,000, to marry Barbara Hutton, who has only $40,000,000. Mr. Rubirosa added, with unassailable logic, that this was not the behavior of a mercenary man—and I think the figures speak for themselves.

Like Mr. Stix, Mr. Rubirosa seems to divide his time between business and his hobby. Days, he looks after the interests of the Dominican Republic as its Ambassador-at-Large. After business hours he tries to make wealthy women happy by marrying them. Mr. Rubirosa's principal problem, like Mr. Stix's, is how to accommodate all the applicants who come knocking at his door. And the diplomat's solution, it seems, is the same as the gallery owner's: to encourage his clients to move on so he can make room for fresh talent.

Everything considered, I think Senor Rubirosa deserves well of the Republic.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Report Is Given On School Project

Woodstock, April 6 — The Woodstock School Board met Monday night at the school and presented a report on the findings of the board, and several interested persons, who went to Albany last Friday to confer with New York State Education Department. The subject of the conference was the question of adding four rooms to the present Woodstock school.

Those who attended the conference were: Adolf Heckeroth, chairman of District No. 2 School Board; Mrs. Charles Rapp and Robert Gordon of the board; Joseph Fitzsimmons, town supervisor; Dr. Hans J. Cohn, David Carlson and Reginald Bennett, superintendent of schools for this district.

The group conferred with Mr. Basil Hicks. The board reported that there was a lengthy discussion which proved highly satisfactory to the board.

To Proceed with Plans

Pending state approval and the vote of the taxpayers of School District No. 2, the board will proceed with plans to build three additional rooms onto the school building. This will include two classrooms, somewhat larger than the present classrooms. The present classrooms are 32 by 22 feet, and the proposed rooms would be 32 by 25 feet. The third room would be a dual purpose room for home economics and shop classes, and it could also be used for art and music. This room would be somewhat larger with approximately 1,000 square feet of space. Equipment would include two complete kitchen units, sewing machines, roll-away beds and storage space. The shop, or industrial arts, section would include limited power machines, a coping saw, hand tools and two work benches.

According to state figures, it was pointed out, the state expects an increase of 30 pupils at the school in the next five years. This does not include out-of-district pupils.

Mr. Bennett said at the meeting, it was reported, that for an eighth-grade school, the Woodstock School "was way out front."

Has Until 1956

It was also noted that the school will have until 1956 to make its decision concerning out-of-district pupils.

The board plans to meet with Albert Graeser, architect for the school, on April 10. There will also be a meeting with the Citizen's Fact Finding Committee on April 15, at 8 p. m. and an open meeting of the board will be held on April 30, at 7:30 p. m.

The annual meeting of School District No. 2, will be held at the school on Tuesday, May 4, at 7 p. m. The budget for the coming year will be presented at this meeting. At the annual meeting when the budget is presented, the expenses under the present program will be given, plus a supplementary budget for the operating expenses for the proposed three additional rooms. This will not include the bond issue necessary for the building of the new rooms.

All Contracts Signed

A request is being made to John Egan to be counsel for the school in this particular issue.

It was announced that all of the teachers' contracts for the coming year have been signed by members of the present teaching staff. Under Governor Dewey's emergency Aid Program, the board saw fit to use the $200 state aid, per teacher, as additional pay, which has insured that a good faculty remain at the school. This was in addition to the $100 to $150 increment pay also given to each teacher.

Lamp Plant Now Being Built Here

Woodstock, April 6—Ground has been broken, and the foundation started on a new building, located on the Bearsville Flats, which will house the J. F. Marr Company, Inc. The plant is now located in Glenford. The building will probably be completed by June 1.

The new plant is located on an acre and three quarters of land, just west of the Shell gas station, and will contain facilities for expansion.

President Marr of the company explained that the plant is being moved to this village as the present plant is inadequate to handle their increase in business. It is also planned that the new building will include storage facilities in order that the entire process from the manufacture of the lamps to shipping may be included under one roof.

To Have Show Room

The new building will be one story high and constructed of concrete blocks. Rectangular in shape the main section contains two long aisles for the manufacturing process, with a center storage space. The shipping door is located to the rear. To the front of the building there is a square wing which will contain show and accounting rooms, offices and restroom facilities.

Marr, who is assisted by his wife, Alice Marr, designer of the lamps, has just completed a decade in business. The lamps, which bear the trademark of Marcrest, the trademark being derived from the Marr family crest, are sold nationally.

Woodstock has been chosen for the site of his plant because of the artistic surroundings of the colony which is famous not only for its fine arts, but for the many craft objects also made here. Marcrest lamps are also sold in many of the local shops.

Mrs. Marr has acted as one of the judges at the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company show at the Onteora School.

Physician Assures Vaccines Are Safe

Woodstock, April 6 — The first, second and third graders of the Woodstock School have been handed forms to obtain parents consent for them to participate in the polio vaccine tests of The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

In view of the fact that Dr. Hans J. Cohn has received calls from several parents in regard to the safety of this procedure he has made the following statement:

"Regardless of any rumors or reports, these vaccines are absolutely safe and harmless.

"I feel that any mother who would request administration of a proven successful vaccine in case of a polio epidemic in this town, should also be willing to give her whole-hearted support now to this vaccination. If proven successful it will mean the end of the fear every parent carries around as long as their children are still young.

Asks Cooperation

"I hope that we will have 100 per cent cooperation."

The consent forms are to be returned to the school either signed or unsigned.

No date has yet been set for the tests, but they will probably begin shortly after the Easter vacation. According to Walter Van Wagenen, school principal, if a youngster, owing to illness or other cause, misses the first innoculation, he will be atomatically eliminated from the test, but if they miss the second or third innoculations, they will be given the vaccine at makeup clinics which will be held about four days later. The tests are being given to the cihldren of the first, second and third grades only.

Firemen to Take Part in Parade

Woodstock, April 6 — At a monthly meeting of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1, Monday night at the fire hall, it was voted to participate in the parade of the Ulster County Firemen's Convention in New Paltz on July 24. The time is set for 5 p. m. The company has petitioned the Woodstock Fire Commissioners for permission to take one of the fire trucks to the convention.

It was announced that six more new fire helmets have been purchased for the truck.

The incorporation of Fire Companies No. 1 and No. 2, of Wittenberg, is in process.

Bruce Reynolds was voted into the company at the meeting.

During the past few days the Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 has been called out to a series of fires. On Saturday a chimney fire occurred at the home of Mauser of Shady and later in the day some old lumber at the home of Richard Bronson, of Zena, caught fire. There was a grass fire at the Stein home on the Glasco Turnpike Sunday, and at noon Monday a grass fire occurred at the home of Frederick Dircks on the Bearsville Road. About 1:35 Monday a small fire was extinguished at the home of Diego on the Saugerties road, near the Baumgarten home. None of the fires were of a serious nature.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Report Is Given On School Project

Woodstock, April 6 — The Woodstock School Board met Monday night at the school and presented a report on the findings of the board, and several interested persons, who went to Albany last Friday to confer with New York State Education Department. The subject of the conference was the question of adding four rooms to the present Woodstock school.

Those who attended the conference were: Adolf Heckeroth, chairman of District No. 2 School Board; Mrs. Charles Rapp and Robert Gordon of the board; Joseph Fitzsimmons, town supervisor; Dr. Hans J. Cohn, David Carlson and Reginald Bennett, superintendent of schools for this district.

The group conferred with Mr. Basil Hicks. The board reported that there was a lengthy discussion which proved highly satisfactory to the board.

To Proceed with Plans

Pending state approval and the vote of the taxpayers of School District No. 2, the board will proceed with plans to build three additional rooms onto the school building. This will include two classrooms, somewhat larger than the present classrooms. The present classrooms are 32 by 22 feet, and the proposed rooms would be 32 by 25 feet. The third room would be a dual purpose room for home economics and shop classes, and it could also be used for art and music. This room would be somewhat larger with approximately 1,000 square feet of space. Equipment would include two complete kitchen units, sewing machines, roll-away beds and storage space. The shop, or industrial arts, section would include limited power machines, a coping saw, hand tools and two work benches.

According to state figures, it was pointed out, the state expects an increase of 30 pupils at the school in the next five years. This does not include out-of-district pupils.

Mr. Bennett said at the meeting, it was reported, that for an eighth-grade school, the Woodstock School "was way out front."

Has Until 1956

It was also noted that the school will have until 1956 to make its decision concerning out-of-district pupils.

The board plans to meet with Albert Graeser, architect for the school, on April 10. There will also be a meeting with the Citizen's Fact Finding Committee on April 15, at 8 p. m. and an open meeting of the board will be held on April 30, at 7:30 p. m.

The annual meeting of School District No. 2, will be held at the school on Tuesday, May 4, at 7 p. m. The budget for the coming year will be presented at this meeting. At the annual meeting when the budget is presented, the expenses under the present program will be given, plus a supplementary budget for the operating expenses for the proposed three additional rooms. This will not include the bond issue necessary for the building of the new rooms.

All Contracts Signed

A request is being made to John Egan to be counsel for the school in this particular issue.

It was announced that all of the teachers' contracts for the coming year have been signed by members of the present teaching staff. Under Governor Dewey's emergency Aid Program, the board saw fit to use the $200 state aid, per teacher, as additional pay, which has insured that a good faculty remain at the school. This was in addition to the $100 to $150 increment pay also given to each teacher.

Lamp Plant Now Being Built Here

Woodstock, April 6—Ground has been broken, and the foundation started on a new building, located on the Bearsville Flats, which will house the J. F. Marr Company, Inc. The plant is now located in Glenford. The building will probably be completed by June 1.

The new plant is located on an acre and three quarters of land, just west of the Shell gas station, and will contain facilities for expansion.

President Marr of the company explained that the plant is being moved to this village as the present plant is inadequate to handle their increase in business. It is also planned that the new building will include storage facilities in order that the entire process from the manufacture of the lamps to shipping may be included under one roof.

To Have Show Room

The new building will be one story high and constructed of concrete blocks. Rectangular in shape the main section contains two long aisles for the manufacturing process, with a center storage space. The shipping door is located to the rear. To the front of the building there is a square wing which will contain show and accounting rooms, offices and restroom facilities.

Marr, who is assisted by his wife, Alice Marr, designer of the lamps, has just completed a decade in business. The lamps, which bear the trademark of Marcrest, the trademark being derived from the Marr family crest, are sold nationally.

Woodstock has been chosen for the site of his plant because of the artistic surroundings of the colony which is famous not only for its fine arts, but for the many craft objects also made here. Marcrest lamps are also sold in many of the local shops.

Mrs. Marr has acted as one of the judges at the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company show at the Onteora School.

Physician Assures Vaccines Are Safe

Woodstock, April 6 — The first, second and third graders of the Woodstock School have been handed forms to obtain parents consent for them to participate in the polio vaccine tests of The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

In view of the fact that Dr. Hans J. Cohn has received calls from several parents in regard to the safety of this procedure he has made the following statement:

"Regardless of any rumors or reports, these vaccines are absolutely safe and harmless.

"I feel that any mother who would request administration of a proven successful vaccine in case of a polio epidemic in this town, should also be willing to give her whole-hearted support now to this vaccination. If proven successful it will mean the end of the fear every parent carries around as long as their children are still young.

Asks Cooperation

"I hope that we will have 100 per cent cooperation."

The consent forms are to be returned to the school either signed or unsigned.

No date has yet been set for the tests, but they will probably begin shortly after the Easter vacation. According to Walter Van Wagenen, school principal, if a youngster, owing to illness or other cause, misses the first innoculation, he will be atomatically eliminated from the test, but if they miss the second or third innoculations, they will be given the vaccine at makeup clinics which will be held about four days later. The tests are being given to the cihldren of the first, second and third grades only.

Firemen to Take Part in Parade

Woodstock, April 6 — At a monthly meeting of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1, Monday night at the fire hall, it was voted to participate in the parade of the Ulster County Firemen's Convention in New Paltz on July 24. It was announced that six more new fire helmets have been purchased for the truck.

The incorporation of Fire Companies No. 1 and No. 2, of Wittenberg, is in process.

Bruce Reynolds was voted into the company at the meeting.

During the past few days the Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 has been called out to a series of fires. On Saturday a chimney fire occurred at the home of Mauser of Shady and later in the day some old lumber at the home of Richard Bronson, of Zena, caught fire. There was a grass fire at the Stein home on the Glasco Turnpike Sunday, and at noon Monday a grass fire occurred at the home of Frederick Dircks on the Bearsville Road. About 1:35 Monday a small fire was extinguished at the home of Diego on the Saugerties road, near the Baumgarten home. None of the fires were of a serious nature.

Mrs. Ralph D. Booth of Salem Depot, N. H., will be the speaker for the YWCA dinner to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel April 22 at 6:30 p. m. to open the celebration of the YWCA Centennial.

Mrs. Vincent Carr, chairman of the Kingston YWCA Centennial committee, stated that Kingston is very fortunate in having Mrs. Booth come here, as she is accepted as one of the most popular speakers to both men and women in the entire eastern region. "We have been trying to get her for over a year, and feel especially pleased that we will have her for this first big event in our year of celebration," said Mrs. Carr.

Mrs. Booth, in addition to being a member of the National Board of the YWCA of the USA, is chairman of the National Centennial Commemoration Committee; a past president of the Boston YWCA and presently president of the New Hampshire District YWCA. Mrs. Booth, a graduate of Barnard College, did post-graduate work at Union Theological Seminary and was formerly a social worker with the Girl's Service League in New York and assistant to the minister of the famed Riverside Church in that city.

Five additional officers will be elected next fall when the club reconvenes after summer vacation. The new officers will have the opportunity to conduct a business meeting some time next month, Miss Barbara Chmura, club president, has announced.

A summary of the year's activities was presented by the president and her committee chairmen. Mrs. Burton Johnson, chairman of Book Service, which is the oldest established League volunteer activity, noted the completion of 21 years' service to the Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals.

The Loan Closet, headed by Mrs. John Roberts, has received unsolicited donations, totaling $55, from grateful recipients of loan articles including wheel chairs and hospital beds.

The provisionals have had five educational meetings, which included talks by Mr. Burhans on probation; Dr. Hargraves and Miss Schisa on health; Andrew Murphy on recereation at Recreation Center; Mr. Bonya on city government; and N. Jansen Fowler, president of Chamber of Commerce. To be completed are visits to the Welfare and Tumor Clinic, with Dr. Milton Grover and Miss Kullman presiding; the Senate House and Common Council meeting.

It was announced by Mrs. Gifford Beal that a new play, Richard Brown and the Dragon, will be given in the grade schools the first week in May by League members, in the same way as the Owl and the Pussy Cat had been presented in the fall.

For the sustaining members who had received a special invitation to attend this meeting, the newly formed League Musical Group gave a short program followed by an amusing skit in their honor.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Warren Knaust, Mrs. Robert Cline and Mrs. Robert Russell.

Rabbi Halpern To Give Talk

PERETZ HALPERN

Rabbi Peretz Halpern, an Orientalist of distinction and summer resident at Woodstock, will address the campaign workers of the 1954 United Jewish Welfare Fund at a dinner meeting this evening at the Stuyvesant Hotel at 6:30 o'clock, it was announced by Attorney Arthur B. Ewig, general chairman of the campaign.

Rabbi Halpern had the opportunity for study of the Arabic languages and civilization in which he has specialized in the course of a number of trips to Europe, Israel, Syria and Egypt.

Born in New York, Rabbi Halpern was graduated from the Herzliah Hebrew Academy, and from the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

He obtained the degrees of B.S. and M.A. at Columbia University. He was at various times rabbi in Boston, Mass., and at Long Island. Rabbi Halpern was commentator on Jewish current events over the radio. He has also contributed to the Political Science Review.

Rabbi Halpern has just recently returned from a three months' tour to Europe, North Africa and Israel. He is a keen observer and analyst and brings a most stimulating and inspiring account of the achievements and needs as he has seen them.

The United Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign provides for the needs of local, national and overseas programs. Among the beneficiaries of the fund is the United Jewish Appeal, which this year has engaged in a five point program which will require an expenditure of $119,921,150 by its three constituent agencies: The United Israel Appeal, Joint Distribution Committee and United Service for New Americans.

OFFICE CAT

(Trade Mark Reg.)

By Junius

The first American bathtub was put into use on Dec. 20, 1843, in Cincinnati, and was denounced as an "undemocratic luxury." The following year Philadelphia passed an ordinance prohibiting bathing between Nov. 1st and March 15th; in the same year Virginia imposed a tax of $30 on every bathtub in the state; Boston, in 1845 passed a law making a bathtub illegal except upon medical advice.

Henry Brown arrived late at the country club dance, and discovered that in slipping on the icy pavement outside, he had torn one knee of his trousers.

Mrs. Brown—Come into the ladies' dressing room, Henry. There's no one there and I'll pin it up for you.

Examination showed that the rip was too large to be pinned. A maid furnished needle and thread and was stationed at the door to keep out intruders, while Mr. Brown removed his trousers. His wife went busily to work.

Presently at the door sounded excited voices.

Women—We must come in, maid. Mrs. Jones is ill. Quick, let us in.

Mrs. Brown—Here (resourceful Mrs. Brown to her terrified husband) get into this closet for a minute.

She opened the door and pushed her husband through it just in time. But instantly, from the opposite side of the door, came loud thumps and the agonized voice of Mr. Brown demanding that his wife open it at once.

Mrs. Brown—But the women are here.

Mr. Brown—Oh, those women! I'm out in the ballroom.

A lot of the trouble in this world is caused by combining a narrow mind with a wide mouth.

A little girl knocked at the front door of the grocery store. Her chum, the daughter of the grocer, stuck her head out of the second story window. "Sarah, we've all been to camp meeting, and got converted. If you want milk on Sunday you'll have to come around to the back door of the store."

Mrs. P.—Your husband looks like a brilliant man. I suppose he knows all about everything.

Mrs. S.—Don't be silly. He doesn't even suspect anything.

The first American bathtub was put into use on Dec. 20, 1843, in Cincinnati, and was denounced as an "undemocratic luxury." The following year Philadelphia passed an ordinance prohibiting bathing between Nov. 1st and March 15th; in the same year Virginia imposed a tax of $30 on every bathtub in the state; Boston, in 1845 passed a law making a bathtub illegal except upon medical advice.

Henry Brown arrived late at the country club dance, and discovered that in slipping on the icy pavement outside, he had torn one knee of his trousers.

Mrs. Brown—Come into the ladies' dressing room, Henry. There's no one there and I'll pin it up for you.

Examination showed that the rip was too large to be pinned. A maid furnished needle and thread and was stationed at the door to keep out intruders, while Mr. Brown removed his trousers. His wife went busily to work.

Presently at the door sounded excited voices.

Women—We must come in, maid. Mrs. Jones is ill. Quick, let us in.

Mrs. Brown—Here (resourceful Mrs. Brown to her terrified husband) get into this closet for a minute.

She opened the door and pushed her husband through it just in time. But instantly, from the opposite side of the door, came loud thumps and the agonized voice of Mr. Brown demanding that his wife open it at once.

Mrs. Brown—But the women are here.

Mr. Brown—Oh, those women! I'm out in the ballroom.

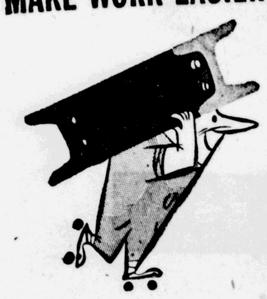

A lot of the trouble in this world is caused by combining a narrow mind with a wide mouth.

A little girl knocked at the front door of the grocery store. Her chum, the daughter of the grocer, stuck her head out of the second story window. "Sarah, we've all been to camp meeting, and got converted. If you want milk on Sunday you'll have to come around to the back door of the store."

Mrs. P.—Your husband looks like a brilliant man. I suppose he knows all about everything.

Mrs. S.—Don't be silly. He doesn't even suspect anything.

Some experts might consider the South hand not quite good enough for an opening two-bid. The hand appears to contain only eight sure winning tricks, but it will produce a game if North can contribute as little as four small spades, or the queen of spades, or even just a little help in clubs.

With any such minimum holding, North is obliged to pass an opening bid of one heart. North would pass one heart with his actual hand and East would likewise pass, so that South would miss a game if he failed to open with a two-bid.

If South is skillful enough to reach the game in the bidding he must justify his strong bidding by careful play of the cards. It would be very easy to misplay the hand and wind up with a minus score.

West opens the king of clubs and South wins at once with the ace. Declarer can afford to draw one trump with the ace of hearts, but should then switch to his singleton diamond. If the ace of diamonds happens to be favorably located, dummy's king will be good later for a trick.

As it happens, East captures the king of diamonds with the ace and returns a club. West takes the two club tricks and leads a diamond, forcing South to ruff.

Now South can afford to lead a second round of trumps. He needs two trumps in dummy to take care of his low spades and the reason for not drawing two rounds of trumps earlier was that this would give the opponents a chance to lead a third trump.

Having drawn the second round of trumps, South cashes the top spades and ruffs a spade in the dummy. East is out of spades but is also fortunately out of trumps. He can only discard helplessly while South ruffs the spades.

Now South can return to his own hand by ruffing a diamond. One of the reasons for leading a diamond so early was to provide this means of getting back to the South hand.

Having ruffed a diamond, South leads his last spade and ruffs with dummy's last trump. South can then claim the last trick with his high trump.

60 Candidates Report for Baseball Drills at Kingston High

Veteran Hurling Staff Points to Winning Season

DUSO Opener May 3 With Poughkeepsie

About 60 players, including five pitchers capable of holding down a starting assignment, are taking part in Kingston High's outdoor baseball drills at the Athletic Field.

Coach Bill Burke said he expects to make a final pruning after Friday's workout then move the club to municipal stadium for the regular schedule.

The DUSO League opener is scheduled May 3 against the tough Poughkeepsie High squad but Burke said he hoped to arrange a couple of preliminary games with New Paltz and Saugerties.

Strong Hurling Corps

Pitching holdovers are veterans Frank Reis, Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling. Bob Maines, who also plays the outfield, and Joe Pino, star of last year's freshman squad, comprise the first line pitching strength. Burke's big problem: how to keep five pitchers happy in a 12-game schedule.

Big Bob Shelightner, a junior, is the No. 1 catcher, backed up by Bob Raible, Tom Neal and Robert Rowe. The Maroons expect Shelightner, a sound receiver, to be one of the club's big hitters this season.

Fay to First Base

Bob Fay, regular right fielder in 1953, has been moved to first base where Joey Hoffman is the No. 2 choice. Skip Brodhead, the basketball wizard, is tabbed for second base and Paul Giannuzzi is without serious competition for the shortstop berth.

With Eddie Van Loan graduated, there is a wide open scramble for the third base slot. The leading candidates at the moment are Kenny Osterhoudt, Don Schroeder and Richie Hilton.

One spot is open in the outfield where Bill Haber and John Turck are the holdovers. Coach Burke figures Bob Maines can hit well enough to be the third outfielder when he isn't pitching.

Harry Osterhoudt, Paul Nerone and Junior Jackson look the best of the other candidates.

New York, April 7 (AP) — A bowed tendon for a race horse is like a torn knee cartilage for an athlete. When you get one, brother, you've had it. Usually it's curtains on your career.

Within the space of ten months bowed tendons have sidelined four of the brightest racing stars of Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable—Dark Star, Black Star, Turn-to and Big Crest.

The latest was Big Crest, hopeful for the May 1 Kentucky Derby, who turned up lame yesterday.

Just on Monday Guggenheim had announced the retirement of Turn-To, 2-1 future book favorite for the Derby who bowed a tendon in training at Lexington, Ky., March 24. Earlier a third Derby eligible, Black Star, bought from Aga Khan, suffered a similar casualty in winter racing at Hialeah.

Dykes Picks Fireballing Larsen Opening Day Hurler for Orioles

By BEN PHLEGAR
(AP Sports Writer)

Baltimore Manager Jimmy Dykes has found an opening day pitcher by the simple method of announcing the job was open.

Unless Dykes second guesses himself between today and Tuesday, fireballing Don Larsen will draw the honor of being the first pitcher to wear an Oriole uniform in a major league game in 52 years.

Larsen clinched the job yesterday, only hours after Dykes declared his starting lineup set except for the mound chores-Larsen stepped to the hill in Hattiesburg, Miss., and blew down the Chicago Cubs on five hits in a 13-2 victory. The handsome righthander went the route for the first time this spring.

Dykes had thrown the job up for grabs while mentioning Larsen, Joe Coleman and Duane Pillette as the best prospects. Coleman also has pitched one complete game but has been unable to get any batting support.

Baltimore will make its debut in Detroit against the Tigers, the one team the old St. Louis Browns, who became the Orioles, could beat.

Tigers Lose Again

The Philadelphia Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates, both definite threats to last place in their own leagues, slammed each other's pitching for 37 hits including 9 homers and 27 runs in a 17-10 contest won by the A's in the Sally League park at Montgomery, Ala.

Base hits boomed in Lynchburg, Va., too as the Cincinnati Redlegs trounced Washington 18-1. The Reds slammed 20 hits, three of them home runs. Howie Judson gave up all four Washington hits in the first six innings. George Zuverink, fresh from Indianapolis, finished up with three hitless innings.

Nichols Blasted

Chet Nichols, Milwaukee's big hope to strengthen its pennant bid, was blasted again, this time by the Boston Red Sox who beat the Braves 10-5. The Red Sox hammered Nichols for seven hits before he gave way to Phil Paine in the third. Nichols, a sensation before going into the army two years ago, rarely has shown his pre-service form this spring.

The New York Giants bowed to Cleveland 10-5 and contributed four errors to their defeat. A two run home run by Al Rosen broke up a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

Stan Musial hit a home run with two aboard and Rip Repulski hit his fourth homer of the spring as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Chicago White Sox 9-2.

The New York Yankees were held at bay for six innings by Clair Parkin, a Red Sox minor leaguer, before coming to life for a 7-2 triumph over Greensboro of the Class B Carolina League. Parkin gave the champs only five hits.

Nielsen Trips Witzig In Wrestling Feature

A half Nelson terminated the wild contest in 4 minutes, 46 seconds.

Bearcat Wright, 266-pound Negro star from Omaha, won two straight falls from Nick Roberts, 242, Tampa, Fla., in the semi-final match.

Wright gained the first fall with an airplane spin and slam in 14:04 and closed out the match in 3:45 of the second fall with a series of jolts to the face and body slam.

Joe Christie, 235, Detroit, and Sandor Kovacs, 224, Quincy, Mass., travelled 30 minutes to a draw in the opener.

Promoter Ted Bayly said he would try to match Hans Schmidt and Yukon Eric for the Friday, April 16 feature.

Canadiens Victory Draws Blast From Wing Manager

Detroit, April 7 (AP) — Furious over the officiating, the Detroit Red Wings blasted referee Red Storey with a verbal broadside today after Maurice Richard of the Montreal Canadiens had squared the Stanley Cup hockey finals at a game apiece.

Questions Choice

"I thought we were supposed to have impartial referees," boomed general manager Jack Adams. "How come Storey, who lives in Montreal, was allowed to officiate in this series?"

Adams, purple with rage, was incensed because he claimed Storey failed to call a penalty against Montreal in the first period for having too many men on the ice.

From the press box, it seemed clear that the Canadiens had more than six players on the ice at one time during a change of lines and actual play.

"But what did Storey do?" Adams asked. "He blew his whistle and put off our Gordie Howe for high sticking."

As it turned out, Howe's penalty was the start of Detroit's downfall. Just 19 seconds after Howe was sent off teammate Tony Leswick followed him into the penalty box for slashing. That gave the Canadiens a two-man advantage for one minute and 41 seconds, and they scored all three goals within that time.

Each of the 25 member clubs of the Federation has been asked to invite personally their own local superintendent of highways since the discussion will center around road work.

60 Candidates Report for Baseball Drills at Kingston High

DUSO Opener May 3 With Poughkeepsie

About 60 players, including five pitchers capable of holding down a starting assignment, are taking part in Kingston High's outdoor baseball drills at the Athletic Field.

Coach Bill Burke said he expects to make a final pruning after Friday's workout then move the club to municipal stadium for the regular schedule.

The DUSO League opener is scheduled May 3 against the tough Poughkeepsie High squad but Burke said he hoped to arrange a couple of preliminary games with New Paltz and Saugerties.

Strong Hurling Corps

Pitching holdovers are veterans Frank Reis, Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling. Bob Maines, who also plays the outfield, and Joe Pino, star of last year's freshman squad, comprise the first line pitching strength. Burke's big problem: how to keep five pitchers happy in a 12-game schedule.

Big Bob Shelightner, a junior, is the No. 1 catcher, backed up by Bob Raible, Tom Neal and Robert Rowe. The Maroons expect Shelightner, a sound receiver, to be one of the club's big hitters this season.

Fay to First Base

Bob Fay, regular right fielder in 1953, has been moved to first base where Joey Hoffman is the No. 2 choice. Skip Brodhead, the basketball wizard, is tabbed for second base and Paul Giannuzzi is without serious competition for the shortstop berth.

With Eddie Van Loan graduated, there is a wide open scramble for the third base slot. The leading candidates at the moment are Kenny Osterhoudt, Don Schroeder and Richie Hilton.

One spot is open in the outfield where Bill Haber and John Turck are the holdovers. Coach Burke figures Bob Maines can hit well enough to be the third outfielder when he isn't pitching.

New York, April 7 (AP) — A bowed tendon for a race horse is like a torn knee cartilage for an athlete. When you get one, brother, you've had it. Usually it's curtains on your career.

Within the space of ten months bowed tendons have sidelined four of the brightest racing stars of Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable—Dark Star, Black Star, Turn-to and Big Crest.

The latest was Big Crest, hopeful for the May 1 Kentucky Derby, who turned up lame yesterday.

Just on Monday Guggenheim had announced the retirement of Turn-To, 2-1 future book favorite for the Derby who bowed a tendon in training at Lexington, Ky., March 24. Earlier a third Derby eligible, Black Star, bought from Aga Khan, suffered a similar casualty in winter racing at Hialeah.

Dykes Picks Fireballing Larsen Opening Day Hurler for Orioles

By BEN PHLEGAR
(AP Sports Writer)

Baltimore Manager Jimmy Dykes has found an opening day pitcher by the simple method of announcing the job was open.

Unless Dykes second guesses himself between today and Tuesday, fireballing Don Larsen will draw the honor of being the first pitcher to wear an Oriole uniform in a major league game in 52 years.

Larsen clinched the job yesterday, only hours after Dykes declared his starting lineup set except for the mound chores-Larsen stepped to the hill in Hattiesburg, Miss., and blew down the Chicago Cubs on five hits in a 13-2 victory. The handsome righthander went the route for the first time this spring.

Dykes had thrown the job up for grabs while mentioning Larsen, Joe Coleman and Duane Pillette as the best prospects. Coleman also has pitched one complete game but has been unable to get any batting support.

Baltimore will make its debut in Detroit against the Tigers, the one team the old St. Louis Browns, who became the Orioles, could beat.

Tigers Lose Again

The Tigers got beat yesterday by the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 after Ned Garver had held the Phils scoreless through six innings.

The Philadelphia Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates, both definite threats to last place in their own leagues, slammed each other's pitching for 37 hits including 9 homers and 27 runs in a 17-10 contest won by the A's in the Sally League park at Montgomery, Ala.

Base hits boomed in Lynchburg, Va., too as the Cincinnati Redlegs trounced Washington 18-1. The Reds slammed 20 hits, three of them home runs. Howie Judson gave up all four Washington hits in the first six innings. George Zuverink, fresh from Indianapolis, finished up with three hitless innings.

Nichols Blasted

Chet Nichols, Milwaukee's big hope to strengthen its pennant bid, was blasted again, this time by the Boston Red Sox who beat the Braves 10-5. The Red Sox hammered Nichols for seven hits before he gave way to Phil Paine in the third. Nichols, a sensation before going into the army two years ago, rarely has shown his pre-service form this spring.

The New York Giants bowed to Cleveland 10-5 and contributed four errors to their defeat. A two run home run by Al Rosen broke up a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

Stan Musial hit a home run with two aboard and Rip Repulski hit his fourth homer of the spring as the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Chicago White Sox 9-2.

The New York Yankees were held at bay for six innings by Clair Parkin, a Red Sox minor leaguer, before coming to life for a 7-2 triumph over Greensboro of the Class B Carolina League. Parkin gave the champs only five hits.

Nielsen Trips Witzig In Wrestling Feature

Art Nielsen, 235, the Savannah, Ga. villain, won the deciding fall over Jack Witzig, 223, tag team expert from Minneapolis in last night's feature wrestling bout at the municipal auditorium.

A half Nelson terminated the wild contest in 4 minutes, 46 seconds.

Witzig won the first fall with a Boston crab hold in 21:03, with Nielsen scoring the equalizer in 15 minutes with a body slam and shoulder press.

Bearcat Wright, 266-pound Negro star from Omaha, won two straight falls from Nick Roberts, 242, Tampa, Fla., in the semi-final match.

Wright gained the first fall with an airplane spin and slam in 14:04 and closed out the match in 3:45 of the second fall with a series of jolts to the face and body slam.

Joe Christie, 235, Detroit, and Sandor Kovacs, 224, Quincy, Mass., travelled 30 minutes to a draw in the opener.

Promoter Ted Bayly said he would try to match Hans Schmidt and Yukon Eric for the Friday, April 16 feature.

Canadiens Victory Draws Blast From Wing Manager

Detroit, April 7 (AP) — Furious over the officiating, the Detroit Red Wings blasted referee Red Storey with a verbal broadside today after Maurice Richard of the Montreal Canadiens had squared the Stanley Cup hockey finals at a game apiece.

Breaking out of a slump, Richard fired two goals in 31 seconds last night to lead the Canadiens to a 3-1 victory over the Red Wings.

But most of the fireworks took place in the steamy Detroit dressing room after the game.

Questions Choice

"I thought we were supposed to have impartial referees," boomed general manager Jack Adams. "How come Storey, who lives in Montreal, was allowed to officiate in this series?"

Adams, purple with rage, was incensed because he claimed Storey failed to call a penalty against Montreal in the first period for having too many men on the ice.

From the press box, it seemed clear that the Canadiens had more than six players on the ice at one time during a change of lines and actual play.

"But what did Storey do?" Adams asked. "He blew his whistle and put off our Gordie Howe for high sticking."

As it turned out, Howe's penalty was the start of Detroit's downfall. Just 19 seconds after Howe was sent off teammate Tony Leswick followed him into the penalty box for slashing. That gave the Canadiens a two-man advantage for one minute and 41 seconds, and they scored all three goals within that time.

Chicago Pinmen Nine Sticks Off ABC Record

Seattle, April 7 (AP) — Nine pins may not seem like much. But to Chicago's red-hot Tri-Par Radio team it meant a chance to become the highest scoring team in 51 years of American Bowling Congress tournament history.

Even so, the Chicagoans left no doubt who ranks as favorite to sweep this year's tournament as they posted a 3226 series to boom into first place in the open division of the ABC meet here last night.

With Carmen Salvino showing the way, the Windy City aggregation served notice from their opening game that they were out to take command of the tourney and they did it with pins to spare.

Joe Wilman, who scored 660, second to Salvino's high of 698, could have given the Tri-Par quintet the record, which they fell short of by nine pins, but his much-needed strike in the tenth frame was high in the pocket and left the four pin standing.

In nearly cracking the record, the new leaders rolled the high game of the 1954 meet with their 1115 and their total is the second highest in tourney history. Birk Brothers of Chicago set the record of 3234 in 1938.

Chicago Pinmen Nine Sticks Off ABC Record

Seattle, April 7 (AP) — Nine pins may not seem like much. But to Chicago's red-hot Tri-Par Radio team it meant a chance to become the highest scoring team in 51 years of American Bowling Congress tournament history.

Even so, the Chicagoans left no doubt who ranks as favorite to sweep this year's tournament as they posted a 3226 series to boom into first place in the open division of the ABC meet here last night.

With Carmen Salvino showing the way, the Windy City aggregation served notice from their opening game that they were out to take command of the tourney and they did it with pins to spare.

Joe Wilman, who scored 660, second to Salvino's high of 698, could have given the Tri-Par quintet the record, which they fell short of by nine pins, but his much-needed strike in the tenth frame was high in the pocket and left the four pin standing.

In nearly cracking the record, the new leaders rolled the high game of the 1954 meet with their 1115 and their total is the second highest in tourney history. Birk Brothers of Chicago get the record of 3234 in 1938.

Snead Admits Putting Yips For Masters

Augusta, Ga., April 7 (AP)—The forgotten man of the Masters golf tournament—the guy whose name hardly has been mentioned in the preliminary speculations—is just a golfer who has won the tournament twice and whose name is one to be reckoned with in any major event.

The name is Samuel Jackson Snead.

In what has approached a hysteria of guessing on Ben Hogan's chances of winning his third Masters—which begins tomorrow—and his second in succession, Snead hardly has been mentioned.

But he has won the tournament twice in the past five years, two of the three times Hogan couldn't make it. He was runner up to Hogan in the National Open last summer and he actually has played more and better golf than Ben has during the winter season.

Neither has followed the tournament circuit, but while Hogan was limiting his appearances to a couple of minor events, Snead took in a few more. Snead visited Panama for the Open tournament there, and took a whach at the Greensboro Open last week.

Snead himself gave one concise reason why he hasn't had too much attention here. After scoring an approximate par 72 in practice yesterday, Sam said: "I've got the yips. I'm hitting the ball as well as I ever did, but those putts just go off wrong."

Pine Plains-Otisville In Other Playoff

Semi-final action is scheduled in the Kingston basketball tournament tonight, with Otisville Merchants meeting Pine Plains Bombardiers at 7:30 p. m.

Haber's Grill, lone Kingston survivor in the 18-team classic, meets MacAuleys of Poughkeepsie at 8:45.

The Pine Plains club, featuring Johnny Cottrill, Don Myers and Bob Martin, is a solid choice over Otisville.

Balch Hits SLA In Stevens Case

New York, April 7 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Richard H. Balch, assailing the State Liquor Authority's (SLA) handling of the Harry M. Stevens, Inc. case, has renewed his party's demands for a bipartisan investigation of the SLA.

Democratic state committee headquarters released the text of a letter sent to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey yesterday by Balch.

Balch told Dewey that the recent action by the SLA in the Harry M. Stevens, Inc. case "makes it more imperative than ever that you agree to Democratic demands for an immediate and sweeping bipartisan investigation of the enforcement and administrative procedures of the State Liquor Authority."

Balch said the SLA "dismissed the case with token punishment and proceeded on April 1 to renew the liquor licenses of the Stevens caterers at Yonkers and Jamaica racetracks."

Jamaica now is open, and Yonkers is opening Monday. Other tracks have not started their meetings yet.

Firm Penalized $250

The SLA on March 24 penalized Stevens, the nation's largest sports center catering firm, $250 for its failure to indicate on its license applications that it had been giving a former Nassau county official 10 per cent of its profits at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island, a total of $281,777 in the past eight years.

The SLA canceled the Stevens firm's beer license at Roosevelt Raceway, which was about to expire and which was not in use because the track was closed. In addition, the SLA forfeited half the $500 bond posted by the company. The SLA's action left the way open for the company to apply for a new license.

Has Concessions

The Stevens firm has licensed concessions at various racetracks, baseball parks and other places in New York state, as well as elsewhere in the country.

The Stevens firm pleaded "no contest" to the SLA's charges that it had made "false material statements" on its Roosevelt raceway beer license applications since 1946. The charges involved failure to list Albert De Meo, former assistant district attorney of Nassau county, as having an interest in the firm's business.

De Meo testified before a state commission investigating harness race tracks that he split his 10 per cent cut of the Stevens profits with William C. De Koning, union labor power at Roosevelt raceway.

Snead Admits Putting Yips For Masters

Augusta, Ga., April 7 (AP)—The forgotten man of the Masters golf tournament—the guy whose name hardly has been mentioned in the preliminary speculations—is just a golfer who has won the tournament twice and whose name is one to be reckoned with in any major event.

The name is Samuel Jackson Snead.

In what has approached a hysteria of guessing on Ben Hogan's chances of winning his third Masters—which begins tomorrow—and his second in succession, Snead hardly has been mentioned.

But he has won the tournament twice in the past five years, two of the three times Hogan couldn't make it. He was runner up to Hogan in the National Open last summer and he actually has played more and better golf than Ben has during the winter season.

Neither has followed the tournament circuit, but while Hogan was limiting his appearances to a couple of minor events, Snead took in a few more. Snead visited Panama for the Open tournament there, and took a whach at the Greensboro Open last week.

Snead himself gave one concise reason why he hasn't had too much attention here. After scoring an approximate par 72 in practice yesterday, Sam said: "I've got the yips. I'm hitting the ball as well as I ever did, but those putts just go off wrong."

Pine Plains-Otisville In Other Playoff

Semi-final action is scheduled in the Kingston basketball tournament tonight, with Otisville Merchants meeting Pine Plains Bombardiers at 7:30 p. m.

Haber's Grill, lone Kingston survivor in the 18-team classic, meets MacAuleys of Poughkeepsie at 8:45.

Tonight's winners clash in the finals Friday at 8:45, with the losers playing for the consolation trophy.

Tournament officials are hopefully rooting for a Haber victory over the veteran MacAuleys to set up a finals against the crack Bombardiers.

The Pine Plains club, featuring Johnny Cottrill, Don Myers and Bob Martin, is a solid choice over Otisville.

Balch Hits SLA In Stevens Case

New York, April 7 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Richard H. Balch, assailing the State Liquor Authority's (SLA) handling of the Harry M. Stevens, Inc. case, has renewed his party's demands for a bipartisan investigation of the SLA.

Democratic state committee headquarters released the text of a letter sent to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey yesterday by Balch.

Balch told Dewey that the recent action by the SLA in the Harry M. Stevens, Inc. case "makes it more imperative than ever that you agree to Democratic demands for an immediate and sweeping bipartisan investigation of the enforcement and administrative procedures of the State Liquor Authority."

Balch said the SLA "dismissed the case with token punishment and proceeded on April 1 to renew the liquor licenses of the Stevens caterers at Yonkers and Jamaica racetracks."

Jamaica now is open, and Yonkers is opening Monday. Other tracks have not started their meetings yet.

Firm Penalized $250

The SLA on March 24 penalized Stevens, the nation's largest sports center catering firm, $250 for its failure to indicate on its license applications that it had been giving a former Nassau county official 10 per cent of its profits at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island, a total of $281,777 in the past eight years.

The SLA canceled the Stevens firm's beer license at Roosevelt Raceway, which was about to expire and which was not in use because the track was closed. In addition, the SLA forfeited half the $500 bond posted by the company. The SLA's action left the way open for the company to apply for a new license.

Has Concessions

The Stevens firm has licensed concessions at various racetracks, baseball parks and other places in New York state, as well as elsewhere in the country.

The Stevens firm pleaded "no contest" to the SLA's charges that it had made "false material statements" on its Roosevelt raceway beer license applications since 1946. The charges involved failure to list Albert De Meo, former assistant district attorney of Nassau county, as having an interest in the firm's business.

De Meo testified before a state commission investigating harness race tracks that he split his 10 per cent cut of the Stevens profits with William C. De Koning, union labor power at Roosevelt raceway.

Saugerties, April 7—Zoning of the Village of Saugerties loomed as the big issue at the meeting of the new village board which met Monday for the first session since the election.

Would Name Vice Lord Counsel to Post

New York, April 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has been asked to appoint Moses Polakoff, New York attorney who once represented vice lord Charles (Lucky) Luciano, to the State Supreme Court.

Secretary of State Thomas J. Curran, New York county (Manhattan) Republican leader, said last night he had recommended Polakoff for the $30,000-a-year post, left vacant by the death of Justice Kenneth O'Brien several months ago.

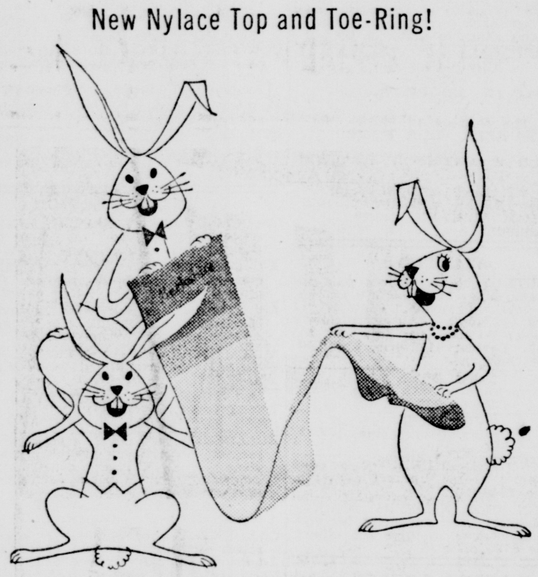

Polakoff was Luciano's chief defense counsel in the 1936 trial in which he was sentenced to prison for 30 to 50 years. The sentence was commuted and Luciano deported to Italy in 1946.

Curran said he did not know when Dewey would fill the court vacancy. In Albany the governor's office said there would be no comment on the matter from Dewey.

President Denies

osophical discussions with Murrow.

He said that in London, during World War II, he always thought of Murrow as a friend. Murrow broadcast from London for CBS when Eisenhower was supreme commander of Allied powers.

The President was asked at the outset of today's news conference whether the United States contemplates making "bigger and bigger" hydrogen bombs.

He replied this country has no intention of going into a program of seeing how big a bomb it can make.

He said he knows of no military requirement that would lead to the development of a bomb bigger than the type already in use.

Obviously he was referring to the two hydrogen weapons tested last month in the Far Pacific.

He said the scientists have speculated a bomb can be made of unlimited size — big enough to blow a hole in the earth's atmosphere—but he made it plain he regarded the size of the bomb exploded in the Pacific as the greatest that can be used with maximum efficiency.

A reporter asked whether he isn't afraid the Russians would make a bigger hydrogen bomb than the American one.

The President replied no, he's not afraid, and said he knows no reason for building a bomb bigger than the present one.

Eisenhower didn't go into the controversy over whether a 1948 agreement with Great Britain—which provided for an exchange of atomic information and a stipulation that neither country would use the atom bomb against a third country without mutual consent—is still in force. The White House said yesterday it is not now in effect, although former President Truman said it is.

Eisenhower commented there is curious history in the exchange of atomic information between this country and Britain.

He said he doesn't know exactly how much information should be passed back and forth in the light of present conditions.

He noted, however, that the present Atomic Energy Act which strictly limits the sharing of information was written under the theory this country could keep its atomic bomb manufacturing method a secret.

Since then the Russians have exploded atomic weapons of their own and the British have developed an atomic bomb, too.

Eisenhower said the Atomic Energy Commission is working on a bill to modernize the Atomic Energy Act. Without giving details, he said this should permit the sharing of enough information to enable the United States and its allies to work together intelligently in the event of war.

Says Lawyer Agrees

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today a lawyer has agreed tentatively to serve as special counsel in the McCarthy-Army investigation. He refused to disclose the man's name. Mundt said the lawyer is "not well known nationally," adding: "I'm sure Joe McCarthy never heard of this man." Mundt said the man was interviewed secretly this morning by the Senate Investigations subcommittee, conducting the probe.

Building Code Approved by Council

Crisman, suffered multiple bruises and contusions of the head, limbs and body, a sprained back, internal injuries and severe shock, and seeks to recover $25,000, the claim said. Her husband seeks $5,000 for loss of services and the other $400 is for car damages.

The $10,000 claim, also filed by Attorney Haver is for injuries which Jessie M. Oughcltree, of 29 VanBuren street, claims she suffered in the same accident, as an occupant of the Crisman car. She reported multiple bruises and contusions of the head, limbs, and body, a sprained back, lacerations of the knees and severe shock.

Attorney Bernard A. Culloton filed the claim for Stuart Werner through his guardian, Julia L. Werner. Information on the claim charged that the quarry hole in which the boy fell is an "attractive nuisance" and at the time of the mishap was unprotected and dangerous. The boy fell more than 100 feet, the claim said, suffering a fracture of the left shoulder, contusions and abrasions. He still requires medical attention, and on the basis of present information the left arm may be permanently impaired, the claim said.

Stepped Into Hole

Miss Lotus M. Zeliff, of 121 Fair street, filed a claim of $121.97, as a result of stepping into a hole at St. James and Pine streets last Feb. 9. Her letter mentioning the claim noted that Alderman Abram D. Relyea, of the 11th ward, had reported the area in the street as "a bad spot" last fall.

Stanley M. Chandler, of 82 O'Neil street, who said he broke a spring on his automobile at a bad spot at Wurts and West Union streets, last Feb. 7.

Deweese W. DeWitt of Richmond Park, mentioned no claim against the city, but reported that his wife had fallen on a sidewalk in front of 220 Albany avenue, and injured her knees. He suggested that the spot be repaired before someone else falls.

Proposes Review

Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel, in a resolution dealing with the quarry hole condition south of Hasbrouck Park, proposed in a resolution that the city determine if the rock in the area could be used for street construction. If found useful, he proposed that it be removed and the area cleared for possible industrial use.

Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly referred the resolution to Mayor Frederick H. Stang and city departments concerned with such projects.

The aldermen accepted a covenant deed from Hillcrest Gardens, Inc., to allow for extension of Fairmont avenue as part of the present street.

A request for a business zone designation for the MacKinnon property at 2 Pearl street, was referred to the laws and rules committee.

Claim Is Paid

On recommendation of the corporation counsel the aldermen voted to pay a claim of $35 to Leo Janasiewicz, whose car was sprayed with aluminum paint on Oct. 21, 1953, when city employes were spraying the fence along the sewage disposal plant on East Strand.

The aldermen voted permission to Assessor Winfield Swart to attend the New York State Assessors' School in Syracuse April 12, 13 and 14. Expenses are to be paid by the county, said the letter asking for permission to attend the session.

A letter from Mayor Stang announcing the appointment of David Schechter to the BPW was read and filed.

A letter from Zeeh's Bottling Works, 47 West Union street, directed to Alderman Harry Brandt, seventh ward, complained that a "no-parking" sign in front of the place was causing a loss of "hundreds of dollars in business," because some drivers noticed the sign and continued on. He proposed replacement of the sign with one reading either "loading zone," or "15-minute parking." The letter was referred to the traffic control committee.

Contract Breached

A resolution by Alderman Charles Cole, 13th ward, noted that terms of a contract for removal of the former veterans housing project in the second ward, have been breached, and the buildings are deteriorating, and are a hazard. He asked that terms of the contract be examined and the corporation counsel "take immediate steps to notify the purchaser of the violation of contract, his liability thereunder, and the resale of said buildings so as to comply with terms of the lease."

The buildings were to have been removed and the land cleared in December, 1953, the resolution said.

Eighth Ward Alderman Arthur Smith asked that the BPW "inform the Common Council as to what steps and decisions it has taken in regard to the establishment of a playground in the eighth ward near the N. 2 school area.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, asked the repair of Oak street, Pine street from Franklin to Greenkill avenue, South Pine street, Greenkill avenue between Wilbur avenue and Pine street, Linderman avenue from Wall street to Becket street, South Washington avenue, Pettit avenue, Klingburg avenue and South Clinton avenue. He noted that the "corner of Wilbur avenue and Pine street is in very bad condition."

Hopes for Street Repair

Tenth Ward Alderman James K. Ryan, in a resolution noted that "spring is at hand" and he hoped a "high priority" would be given street repair in his ward, because it has been "so long since any street repairs have been made." He figured that the superintendent of public works would have no trouble "in finding work" there, but might have trouble in deciding which street to work on first.

This resolution, Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, second ward, considered "a new approach."

The aldermen spent some time discussing what they considered lack of results from requests for street lights. Radel asked that something be done about it. Relyea wondered about maintenance of the lights over patrolmen stationed by city markets, and Ryan complained that the BPW light committee "never sees fit to let us know," as to whether it decides for or against a light, and the reason for its action.

Requests for signs on city streets reading "play area" came in for discussion when Alderman Storms wondered if the city would not be responsible for mishaps in any area so designated.

Radel figured that signs with some other "proper wording" could relieve the city of responsibility and help protect children at play in various neighborhoods. On suggestion of Alderman-at-Large Kelly, it was decided to get a ruling from the corporation counsel.

Supervisor Speaks

The aldermen heard from a supervisor when Kelly allowed Fourth Ward Supervisor Joseph J. Turck the privilege of the floor to present requests by residents of his ward.

Turck asked for bus service on East Chester street to serve residents in the East Chester street extension area. It was noted that Alderman Radel had previously asked for this, and the alderman explained that subsequently a bid for bus service for the Colonial Gardens project had been made, and the proposal referred to Mayor Stang.

Turck asked for a fence on Gross street to protect a property owner there from wayward baseballs and golf balls. The pavement of East Chester street extension needed attention, he said, and he had received complaints of holes and dust. He mentioned a dangerous condition at Second avenue and Elm street, and said a guard rail between the Immaculate Conception Church and the railroad crossing needed repair, and the rails should be closed in the fence.

Turck said he appeared before the council because people of his ward has asked him to, and he had promised to serve them when elected. Kelly suggested that he get in touch with Fourth Ward Alderman Joseph F. Wenzel so that the latter could present the requests in resolution form, and the latter indicated that he had already taken such steps.

Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom, of Temple Emanuel, opened the meeting with a prayer and Alderman-at-large Kelly led in the salute to the flag. The session, one of the longest in many months, lasted from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Council Reduces

Will Alter Front

Renovation plans call for replacement of the present theatre front and marquee with one of Colonial design with columns similar to those at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and because special permission is required for this type of construction on or over a sidewalk, an amendment to present regulations was required.

The aldermen voted a $75,000 assessment reduction on the two theatres when Corporation Counsel Abernethy explained that the Walter Reade interests threatened suit for reductions on the basis of comparing lower assessments on other properties of similar value.

The present assessment of the Kingston Theatre is $226,670, and that on the Broadway Theatre is $200,000. The Reade interests asked a reduction of the Kingston Theatre assessment to $150,000 and that on the other to $140,000.

The compromise agreed upon by the city was a reduction to $176,670 on the Kingston Theatre and $175,000 on the other.

Two Do Not Vote

Two Democratic Aldermen, Edwin Radel, third ward, and Charles Cole, 13th ward, asked to be excused from voting, and William K. Bodenweber, ninth ward, voted no, on the proposal. The nine Republicans voted solidly for it.

Radel, who had noted in a resolution, he had introduced that construction was going on along the city's proposed arterial route, without apparent consideration for plans in those areas, felt that the changes at the Broadway Theatre should be considered in relation to the arterial plan, and he felt the aldermen had not been given enough time to "weigh" the proposal. He suggested no action be taken for a week.

Radel said he felt that if the alderman voted the assessment reduction, the city may "break out in a rash of similar claims." He said he had faith in the corporation counsel, but he noted that the aldermen were not acquainted with the proposal until 7:15 p. m., and he did not feel that was enough time.

Explanation Asked

Alderman-at-Large Kelly then called upon the corporation counsel to explain, and Abernethy said he explained the proposal to the aldermen, not to influence their action but to let them know the position of the city if the theatre interests brought suit. To do the work preliminary to trial would be costly to the city, he said. He would not like to see the city spend this money in the face of a probable assessment cut as the net result.

Alderman James K. Ryan, 10th ward, said he felt that the Reade interests could point to other properties in the city for comparison, and he felt in the long run, the reduction would help everyone.

Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, second ward, said he felt "we are in a lawsuit—we stand to take a licking on it—I think we should go along with the corporation counsel on this." Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, indicated a similar thought.

The aldermen also voted an assessment reduction from $6,500 to $3,500, in behalf of the Kingston Heating Supply Corp., on Wilbur avenue.

McCarthy Says

cause of that 18-month deliberate delay," he added.

McCarthy's statement was called "absolutely ridiculous" by Rep. Melvin Price (D.-Ill.), a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Price said in Washington. "He showed complete ignorance."

Price added that there may have been some delay in getting the H-bomb project started, but "certainly not for the reasons" McCarthy indicated.

Comment Declined

Both the Atomic Energy Commission and Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-NY), chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, declined comment.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-NY), chairman of the Atomic Committee, said this country took "a long time" on the decision to go ahead with the hydrogen bomb."

"But that does not mean there was anything sinister necessarily," he added.

The Atomic Energy Commission declined to comment.

The H-bomb statement was a byproduct of McCarthy's reply to charges by Murrow that he has abused his authority as a Senate investigator.

Murrow attacked McCarthy on March 9. He offered to turn his 30-minute "See It Now" show over to the senator in order that he might reply. The answer was filmed over the weekend and telecast while McCarthy was in Arizona.

Draws Up Reply

Although the film was kept secret until shortly before air time, Murrow, through sources he declined to divulge, obtained knowledge of the charges and drew up a reply which was released at the time of the telecast.

CBS said first listener reaction, via telephone calls and telegrams, was "overwhelmingly" in favor of Murrow.

The charges and answers included:

McCarthy: That Murrow "as far back as 20 years ago was engaged in propaganda for Communist causes. . . ." The March 9 attack "followed implicitly the Communist line laid down in the last six months" by various Communist publications.

Murrow: "McCarthy's reckless and unfounded attempt to impugn my loyalty is just one more example of his typical tactic of attempting to tie up to communism anyone who disagrees with him."

Charge Against Murrow

McCarthy: That as acting director of the Institute of International Education in the 1930s Murrow "sponsored a Communist school in Moscow. In the selection of American students and teachers, who were to attend Mr. Murrow's organization, (Murrow) acted for the Russian espionage and propagandist organization known as VOKS—V-O-K-S. Many of those selected were later exposed as Communists."

Murrow: "In 1934, the Moscow University had organized an Anglo-American Institute which proposed holding summer sessions in Moscow for English and American students . . . I, as a representative of the institute . . . was one of the 24-member national advisory council which was set up to advise the director of the American group . . . the only contact which VOKS had with the American group was in connection with procuring living and travel facilities for the group while it was in Russia . . . Contact with it was necessary if the students were to sleep and eat . . . The Soviets refused, after the 1934 summer session, to have anything more to do with the institute . . ."

Irresponsible, He Says

(Arthur A. Houghton Jr., chairman of the board of trustees of the institute, commented: "Sen. McCarthy's remarks . . . are so irresponsible and so far from actuality as to be undeserving of a reply . . ."

McCarthy: Murrow, by his own admission, was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, "a terrorist organization" of the early 20th century.

Murrow: "A false charge . . . manufactured by Sen. McCarthy."

McCarthy: Owen Lattimore, now under indictment for alleged perjury before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, said in a book: "I owe a very special debt to men I have never met—I must mention at least Edward R. Murrow."

Murrow: Lattimore made this reference only after paying tribute to other newspaper and radio reporters for reporting which was "clearly based upon the ancient principle that I (Lattimore) was innocent until proved guilty."

McCarthy: "Harold Laski, admittedly the greatest Communist propagandist of our time in England," dedicated a book to Murrow:

Murrow: Laski "was a friend of mine . . . he was a Socialist. I am not." Laski made the dedication in tribute to Murrow's broadcasts from England during World War 2.

McCarthy noted that in the March 9 telecast Murrow said "the actions of the junior senator from Wisconsin have given considerable comfort to the enemy."

"That is the language of our statute of treason—rather strong language," McCarthy said.

One or Other

"If I am giving comfort to our enemies, I ought not to be in the Senate.

"If, on the other hand, Mr. Murrow is giving comfort to our enemies, he ought not to be brought into the homes of millions of Americans by the Columbia Broadcasting System. This is the question which can be resolved with very little difficulty . . .

"What do the Communists think of me and what do the Communists think of Mr. Murrow. One of us is on the side of the Communists—the other is against the Communists . . ."

He then said that on numerous occasions since the March 9 telecast the Communist Daily Worker has attacked him while praising Murrow.

Murrow's Reply

Murrow replied:

"I cannot take responsibility for what the Daily Worker or any other publication has to say about my program or about me personally. I can say that I had no knowledge that I was to be the subject of notice by the Daily Worker. . . . This is more than Sen. McCarthy can say about the Communist support he accepted in aid of his 1946 campaign for the U. S. Senate."

(McCarthy has said he knew of no Communist support for him.)

The Columbia Broadcasting System issued an advance statement praising Murrow for his "passionate devotion to his country and to the fundamental principles upon which it was built..."

The network said that its most immediate gauge of public response to the telecast was "overwhelmingly in favor of Murrow." It listed the following score for telephone and telegraphed messages:

New York—A two-hour period after the program—2,012 for Murrow, 977 for McCarthy.

Los Angeles—Two Hours—949 Murrow, 144 McCarthy.

Chicago—70 minutes—454 Murrow, 147 McCarthy.

Kentucky produced about 64 million tons of coal last year.

Taken to Matteawan

New York, April 7 (AP)—Harold Weinberg, 25, charged with the slaying of Greenwich Village poet and author Maxwell Bodenheim and his third wife, was committed today to the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane. Weinberg, a dishwasher who had been paying rent for the dingy room in which the bodies of the Bodenheims were found, was adjudged insane in a report by Bellevue Hospital psychiatrists. General Sessions Judge Edward J. McCullen, acting on the report, ordered Weinberg's commitment.

President Denies

osophical discussions with Murrow.

He said that in London, during World War II, he always thought of Murrow as a friend. Murrow broadcast from London for CBS when Eisenhower was supreme commander of Allied powers.

The President was asked at the outset of today's news conference whether the United States contemplates making "bigger and bigger" hydrogen bombs.

He replied this country has no intention of going into a program of seeing how big a bomb it can make.

He said he knows of no military requirement that would lead to the development of a bomb bigger than the type already in use.

Obviously he was referring to the two hydrogen weapons tested last month in the Far Pacific.

He said the scientists have speculated a bomb can be made of unlimited size — big enough to blow a hole in the earth's atmosphere—but he made it plain he regarded the size of the bomb exploded in the Pacific as the greatest that can be used with maximum efficiency.

A reporter asked whether he isn't afraid the Russians would make a bigger hydrogen bomb than the American one.

The President replied no, he's not afraid, and said he knows no reason for building a bomb bigger than the present one.

Eisenhower didn't go into the controversy over whether a 1948 agreement with Great Britain—which provided for an exchange of atomic information and a stipulation that neither country would use the atom bomb against a third country without mutual consent—is still in force. The White House said yesterday it is not now in effect, although former President Truman said it is.

Eisenhower commented there is curious history in the exchange of atomic information between this country and Britain.

He said he doesn't know exactly how much information should be passed back and forth in the light of present conditions.

He noted, however, that the present Atomic Energy Act which strictly limits the sharing of information was written under the theory this country could keep its atomic bomb manufacturing method a secret.

Since then the Russians have exploded atomic weapons of their own and the British have developed an atomic bomb, too.

Eisenhower said the Atomic Energy Commission is working on a bill to modernize the Atomic Energy Act. Without giving details, he said this should permit the sharing of enough information to enable the United States and its allies to work together intelligently in the event of war.

Says Lawyer Agrees

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today a lawyer has agreed tentatively to serve as special counsel in the McCarthy-Army investigation. He refused to disclose the man's name. Mundt said the lawyer is "not well known nationally," adding: "I'm sure Joe McCarthy never heard of this man." Mundt said the man was interviewed secretly this morning by the Senate Investigations subcommittee, conducting the probe.

Building Code Approved by Council

Crisman, suffered multiple bruises and contusions of the head, limbs and body, a sprained back, internal injuries and severe shock, and seeks to recover $25,000, the claim said. Her husband seeks $5,000 for loss of services and the other $400 is for car damages.

The $10,000 claim, also filed by Attorney Haver is for injuries which Jessie M. Oughcltree, of 29 VanBuren street, claims she suffered in the same accident, as an occupant of the Crisman car. She reported multiple bruises and contusions of the head, limbs, and body, a sprained back, lacerations of the knees and severe shock.

Attorney Bernard A. Culloton filed the claim for Stuart Werner through his guardian, Julia L. Werner. Information on the claim charged that the quarry hole in which the boy fell is an "attractive nuisance" and at the time of the mishap was unprotected and dangerous. The boy fell more than 100 feet, the claim said, suffering a fracture of the left shoulder, contusions and abrasions. He still requires medical attention, and on the basis of present information the left arm may be permanently impaired, the claim said.

Stepped Into Hole

Miss Lotus M. Zeliff, of 121 Fair street, filed a claim of $121.97, as a result of stepping into a hole at St. James and Pine streets last Feb. 9. Her letter mentioning the claim noted that Alderman Abram D. Relyea, of the 11th ward, had reported the area in the street as "a bad spot" last fall.

Stanley M. Chandler, of 82 O'Neil street, who said he broke a spring on his automobile at a bad spot at Wurts and West Union streets, last Feb. 7.

Deweese W. DeWitt of Richmond Park, mentioned no claim against the city, but reported that his wife had fallen on a sidewalk in front of 220 Albany avenue, and injured her knees. He suggested that the spot be repaired before someone else falls.

Proposes Review

Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel, in a resolution dealing with the quarry hole condition south of Hasbrouck Park, proposed in a resolution that the city determine if the rock in the area could be used for street construction. If found useful, he proposed that it be removed and the area cleared for possible industrial use.

Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly referred the resolution to Mayor Frederick H. Stang and city departments concerned with such projects.

The aldermen accepted a covenant deed from Hillcrest Gardens, Inc., to allow for extension of Fairmont avenue as part of the present street.

A request for a business zone designation for the MacKinnon property at 2 Pearl street, was referred to the laws and rules committee.

Claim Is Paid

On recommendation of the corporation counsel the aldermen voted to pay a claim of $35 to Leo Janasiewicz, whose car was sprayed with aluminum paint on Oct. 21, 1953, when city employes were spraying the fence along the sewage disposal plant on East Strand.

The aldermen voted permission to Assessor Winfield Swart to attend the New York State Assessors' School in Syracuse April 12, 13 and 14. Expenses are to be paid by the county, said the letter asking for permission to attend the session.

A letter from Mayor Stang announcing the appointment of David Schechter to the BPW was read and filed.

A letter from Zeeh's Bottling Works, 47 West Union street, directed to Alderman Harry Brandt, seventh ward, complained that a "no-parking" sign in front of the place was causing a loss of "hundreds of dollars in business," because some drivers noticed the sign and continued on. He proposed replacement of the sign with one reading either "loading zone," or "15-minute parking." The letter was referred to the traffic control committee.

Contract Breached

A resolution by Alderman Charles Cole, 13th ward, noted that terms of a contract for removal of the former veterans housing project in the second ward, have been breached, and the buildings are deteriorating, and are a hazard. He asked that terms of the contract be examined and the corporation counsel "take immediate steps to notify the purchaser of the violation of contract, his liability thereunder, and the resale of said buildings so as to comply with terms of the lease."

The buildings were to have been removed and the land cleared in December, 1953, the resolution said.

Eighth Ward Alderman Arthur Smith asked that the BPW "inform the Common Council as to what steps and decisions it has taken in regard to the establishment of a playground in the eighth ward near the N. 2 school area.

Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, asked the repair of Oak street, Pine street from Franklin to Greenkill avenue, South Pine street, Greenkill avenue between Wilbur avenue and Pine street, Linderman avenue from Wall street to Becket street, South Washington avenue, Pettit avenue, Klingburg avenue and South Clinton avenue. He noted that the "corner of Wilbur avenue and Pine street is in very bad condition."

Hopes for Street Repair

Tenth Ward Alderman James K. Ryan, in a resolution noted that "spring is at hand" and he hoped a "high priority" would be given street repair in his ward, because it has been "so long since any street repairs have been made." He figured that the superintendent of public works would have no trouble "in finding work" there, but might have trouble in deciding which street to work on first.

This resolution, Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, second ward, considered "a new approach."

The aldermen spent some time discussing what they considered lack of results from requests for street lights. Radel asked that something be done about it. Relyea wondered about maintenance of the lights over patrolmen stationed by city markets, and Ryan complained that the BPW light committee "never sees fit to let us know," as to whether it decides for or against a light, and the reason for its action.

Requests for signs on city streets reading "play area" came in for discussion when Alderman Storms wondered if the city would not be responsible for mishaps in any area so designated.

Radel figured that signs with some other "proper wording" could relieve the city of responsibility and help protect children at play in various neighborhoods. On suggestion of Alderman-at-Large Kelly, it was decided to get a ruling from the corporation counsel.

Supervisor Speaks

The aldermen heard from a supervisor when Kelly allowed Fourth Ward Supervisor Joseph J. Turck the privilege of the floor to present requests by residents of his ward.

Turck asked for bus service on East Chester street to serve residents in the East Chester street extension area. It was noted that Alderman Radel had previously asked for this, and the alderman explained that subsequently a bid for bus service for the Colonial Gardens project had been made, and the proposal referred to Mayor Stang.

Turck asked for a fence on Gross street to protect a property owner there from wayward baseballs and golf balls. The pavement of East Chester street extension needed attention, he said, and he had received complaints of holes and dust. He mentioned a dangerous condition at Second avenue and Elm street, and said a guard rail between the Immaculate Conception Church and the railroad crossing needed repair, and the rails should be closed in the fence.

Turck said he appeared before the council because people of his ward has asked him to, and he had promised to serve them when elected. Kelly suggested that he get in touch with Fourth Ward Alderman Joseph F. Wenzel so that the latter could present the requests in resolution form, and the latter indicated that he had already taken such steps.

Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom, of Temple Emanuel, opened the meeting with a prayer and Alderman-at-large Kelly led in the salute to the flag. The session, one of the longest in many months, lasted from 7:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Council Reduces

Will Alter Front

Renovation plans call for replacement of the present theatre front and marquee with one of Colonial design with columns similar to those at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and because special permission is required for this type of construction on or over a sidewalk, an amendment to present regulations was required.

The aldermen voted a $75,000 assessment reduction on the two theatres when Corporation Counsel Abernethy explained that the Walter Reade interests threatened suit for reductions on the basis of comparing lower assessments on other properties of similar value.

The present assessment of the Kingston Theatre is $226,670, and that on the Broadway Theatre is $200,000. The Reade interests asked a reduction of the Kingston Theatre assessment to $150,000 and that on the other to $140,000.

The compromise agreed upon by the city was a reduction to $176,670 on the Kingston Theatre and $175,000 on the other.

Two Do Not Vote

Two Democratic Aldermen, Edwin Radel, third ward, and Charles Cole, 13th ward, asked to be excused from voting, and William K. Bodenweber, ninth ward, voted no, on the proposal. The nine Republicans voted solidly for it.

Radel, who had noted in a resolution, he had introduced that construction was going on along the city's proposed arterial route, without apparent consideration for plans in those areas, felt that the changes at the Broadway Theatre should be considered in relation to the arterial plan, and he felt the aldermen had not been given enough time to "weigh" the proposal. He suggested no action be taken for a week.

Radel said he felt that if the alderman voted the assessment reduction, the city may "break out in a rash of similar claims." He said he had faith in the corporation counsel, but he noted that the aldermen were not acquainted with the proposal until 7:15 p. m., and he did not feel that was enough time.

Explanation Asked

Alderman-at-Large Kelly then called upon the corporation counsel to explain, and Abernethy said he explained the proposal to the aldermen, not to influence their action but to let them know the position of the city if the theatre interests brought suit. To do the work preliminary to trial would be costly to the city, he said. He would not like to see the city spend this money in the face of a probable assessment cut as the net result.

Alderman James K. Ryan, 10th ward, said he felt that the Reade interests could point to other properties in the city for comparison, and he felt in the long run, the reduction would help everyone.

Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, second ward, said he felt "we are in a lawsuit—we stand to take a licking on it—I think we should go along with the corporation counsel on this." Alderman Abram D. Relyea, 11th ward, indicated a similar thought.

The aldermen also voted an essessment reduction from $6,500 to $3,500, in behalf of the Kingston Heating Supply Corp., on Wilbur avenue.

McCarthy Says

cause of that 18-month deliberate delay," he added.

McCarthy's statement was called "absolutely ridiculous" by Rep. Melvin Price (D.-Ill.), a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Price said in Washington. "He showed complete ignorance."

Price added that there may have been some delay in getting the H-bomb project started, but "certainly not for the reasons" McCarthy indicated.

Comment Declined

Both the Atomic Energy Commission and Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-NY), chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, declined comment.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R.-NY), chairman of the Atomic Committee, said this country took "a long time" on the decision to go ahead with the hydrogen bomb."

"But that does not mean there was anything sinister necessarily," he added.

The Atomic Energy Commission declined to comment.

The H-bomb statement was a byproduct of McCarthy's reply to charges by Murrow that he has abused his authority as a Senate investigator.

Murrow attacked McCarthy on March 9. He offered to turn his 30-minute "See It Now" show over to the senator in order that he might reply. The answer was filmed over the weekend and telecast while McCarthy was in Arizona.

Draws Up Reply

Although the film was kept secret until shortly before air time, Murrow, through sources he declined to divulge, obtained knowledge of the charges and drew up a reply which was released at the time of the telecast.

CBS said first listener reaction, via telephone calls and telegrams, was "overwhelmingly" in favor of Murrow.

The charges and answers included:

McCarthy: That Murrow "as far back as 20 years ago was engaged in propaganda for Communist causes. . . ." The March 9 attack "followed implicitly the Communist line laid down in the last six months" by various Communist publications.

Murrow: "McCarthy's reckless and unfounded attempt to impugn my loyalty is just one more example of his typical tactic of attempting to tie up to communism anyone who disagrees with him."

Charge Against Murrow

McCarthy: That as acting director of the Institute of International Education in the 1930s Murrow "sponsored a Communist school in Moscow. In the selection of American students and teachers, who were to attend Mr. Murrow's organization, (Murrow) acted for the Russian espionage and propagandist organization known as VOKS—V-O-K-S. Many of those selected were later exposed as Communists."

Murrow: "In 1934, the Moscow University had organized an Anglo-American Institute which proposed holding summer sessions in Moscow for English and American students . . . I, as a representative of the institute . . . was one of the 24-member national advisory council which was set up to advise the director of the American group . . . the only contact which VOKS had with the American group was in connection with procuring living and travel facilities for the group while it was in Russia . . . Contact with it was necessary if the students were to sleep and eat . . . The Soviets refused, after the 1934 summer session, to have anything more to do with the institute . . ."

Irresponsible, He Says

(Arthur A. Houghton Jr., chairman of the board of trustees of the institute, commented: "Sen. McCarthy's remarks . . . are so irresponsible and so far from actuality as to be undeserving of a reply . . ."

McCarthy: Murrow, by his own admission, was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, "a terrorist organization" of the early 20th century.

Murrow: "A false charge . . . manufactured by Sen. McCarthy."

McCarthy: Owen Lattimore, now under indictment for alleged perjury before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, said in a book: "I owe a very special debt to men I have never met—I must mention at least Edward R. Murrow."

Murrow: Lattimore made this reference only after paying tribute to other newspaper and radio reporters for reporting which was "clearly based upon the ancient principle that I (Lattimore) was innocent until proved guilty."

McCarthy: "Harold Laski, admittedly the greatest Communist propagandist of our time in England," dedicated a book to Murrow:

Murrow: Laski "was a friend of mine . . . he was a Socialist. I am not." Laski made the dedication in tribute to Murrow's broadcasts from England during World War 2.

McCarthy noted that in the March 9 telecast Murrow said "the actions of the junior senator from Wisconsin have given considerable comfort to the enemy."

"That is the language of our statute of treason—rather strong language," McCarthy said.

One or Other

"If I am giving comfort to our enemies, I ought not to be in the Senate.

"If, on the other hand, Mr. Murrow is giving comfort to our enemies, he ought not to be brought into the homes of millions of Americans by the Columbia Broadcasting System. This is the question which can be resolved with very little difficulty . . .

"What do the Communists think of me and what do the Communists think of Mr. Murrow. One of us is on the side of the Communists—the other is against the Communists . . ."

He then said that on numerous occasions since the March 9 telecast the Communist Daily Worker has attacked him while praising Murrow.

Murrow's Reply

Murrow replied:

"I cannot take responsibility for what the Daily Worker or any other publication has to say about my program or about me personally. I can say that I had no knowledge that I was to be the subject of notice by the Daily Worker. . . . This is more than Sen. McCarthy can say about the Communist support he accepted in aid of his 1946 campaign for the U. S. Senate."

(McCarthy has said he knew of no Communist support for him.)

The Columbia Broadcasting System issued an advance statement praising Murrow for his "passionate devotion to his country and to the fundamental principles upon which it was built..."

The network said that its most immediate gauge of public response to the telecast was "overwhelmingly in favor of Murrow." It listed the following score for telephone and telegraphed messages:

New York—A two-hour period after the program—2,012 for Murrow, 977 for McCarthy.

Los Angeles—Two Hours—949 Murrow, 144 McCarthy.

Chicago—70 minutes—454 Murrow, 147 McCarthy.

Kentucky produced about 64 million tons of coal last year.

QUESTION: A short time ago we were involved in a minor collision with our car and although there was no damage to either car, the other driver did get a bad bump on his head. He said he was all right and to forget it so we didn't report it but friends tell us complications could arise from that bump and that we should report it to our Insurance Company. Is this so?
ANSWER: Yes. That bump constitutes a Personal Injury and should be reported immediately to your Insurance Company.
